Nikita Khrushchev

"... declares war on United Nations"

Red Declaration of War On UN Unites West

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—Nikita S. Khrushchev precipitated the United Nations into a fight for its existence Friday and the United States and Britain united to save the world parliament from eventual destruction by communism.

The United States and Britain, in separate declarations, termed the Soviet premier's speech (see Page 11) a "declaration of war against the United Nations." The two allies, who have not always seen eye to eye in the UN were acting as one to head off this new threat.

U.S. Ambassador James J. Wadsworth, speaking in reply to Khrushchev, told the assembly it faced two crises.

The first, he said, was Khrushchev's threat to "turn the world's greatest body for peace into a propaganda forum to serve the interests of communist imperialism."

"But there is a second and more serious crisis," Wadsworth said, "which consists of an attempt to destroy the office and very structure of the secretary-general and the secretariat, and through it to destroy the United Nations."

"The United Nations must face this crisis head on. If it does not, it will fail."

Secretary of State Christian A. Herter used the "declaration of war" phrase at a lunch meeting of the foreign press association. British foreign office spokesman John Russell utilized the same words later in giving Britain's first official reaction to Khrushchev.

Russell's statement, as British foreign office spokesman here, was regarded as perhaps the most outspoken British denunciation of Russia's policy in the UN and of unequivocal British support for the world organization.

"Khrushchev's proposal for reorganizing the office of the secretary-general by weakening and diluting it," Russell said, "represents a confession that a strong and effective UN machine is incompatible with Soviet ambitions."

"In other words, the weaker the United Nations, the greater chance the Soviet Union has of achieving its professed ambition of world domination. This morning's performance struck us as being a Russian attack on mankind's hope for a united world."

Herter indicated to Hammarskjöld that the United States wanted to submit an immediate motion of confidence in him as secretary-general.

Khrushchev's speech left in its wake a mounting confusion and dissension that threatened to develop into the bitterest feelings the world organization has seen in its 15-year history.

Big Three Huddles To Back Dag, UN

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Foreign ministers of the West's Big Three huddled last night on plans to throw maximum support behind the United Nations and Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld. After State Secretary Christian Herter talked with the UN head, he joined Britain's Earl of Home and France's Maurice Couve de Murville.

Nikita In a Nutshell

ON THE UN:

Abolish the post of secretary-general and replace it by a Soviet-style presidium in which Russia presumably would have veto power.

ON COLONIALISM:

Grant complete independence immediately to all colonies, UN trusteeship territories and non-self-governing territories.

ON CONGO:

"The assembly should give a rebuff to the colonialists and their stooges and call Mr. Hammarskjöld to order... only the troops of the countries of Africa and Asia should be left... only with the consent of the legally-elected Congolese government of Mr. Lumumba."

ON CUBA:

"The United Nations must do all it can to remove from Cuba the overhanging threat of interference from outside."

ON THE U.S.:

"... the question of aggressive actions of the United States must be dealt with by the United Nations at its plenary session."

ON DISARMAMENT:

Basically a rehash of last year's proposal for total world disarmament in the next four years.

ON THE FAR EAST:

West Solidly Behind Dag

Nikita Seems Headed For Stunning Defeat

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev appeared headed for a stunning defeat in his proposal to abolish the post of United Nations Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld.

This was the consensus of UN diplomats Friday night as they weighed the words of the Soviet premier and the indignation his speech to the UN aroused from the United States, Britain and many other countries.

VOTE CONFIDENCE

The United States was ready to put a resolution before the 15th session of the General Assembly demanding a vote of confidence in Hammarskjöld. Such a resolution was certain to win overwhelming approval.

Khrushchev evoked laughter in the assembly from both pro-Western and anti-Western delegates when he proposed also that the UN headquarters be moved out of New York.

U.S. delegate James Wadsworth, taking the floor at the afternoon session of the assembly, recalled that the Soviet Union had tried to crush Trygve Lie, who was Hammarskjöld's predecessor, because Lie "stood up against Communist aggression in Korea."

Soviet opposition to Lie was credited with his decision not to become a candidate for re-election in 1953.

Hammarskjöld himself had no comment. His associates said he considers it was a matter for the assembly to handle.

Western diplomats lined up solidly behind Hammarskjöld.

COOL REACTION

The address received a generally cool initial reaction in western Europe.

Western observers in Moscow said his speech was Khrushchev's biggest bid to date to attract new supporters from the uncommitted countries of Africa and Asia. To these observers much of the speech contained familiar Soviet viewpoints on "colonialism" and "full, complete disarmament."

SEEMS TO DIVIDE

London commentators saw Khrushchev as trying to stir up the Afro-Asian nations against the West and seeking to divide the UN along East-West lines.

In Paris, Khrushchev's disarmament proposals were termed "utopian" and not meant to be taken as the basis for hard-headed negotiations. His proposal for dropping Hammarskjöld's office was viewed as a propaganda move.

The pilot, not identified, escaped injury. The plane was towed to shore by a boat and later beached.

City Seaman Drowns As Boat Capsizes

Norwegian-born Olav Watne, coxswain of the Victoria-based federal government hydrographic survey vessel William J. Stewart, drowned Thursday when a small boat capsized in severe weather off the southern tip of the Queen Charlotte Islands.

Four other unidentified crew members, who made their way to shore and spent the night on a small island after the boat capsized, were rescued yesterday by a lifeboat from the hydrographic ship.

Two of these men were injured and were treated by a doctor flown 100 miles from Sandspit on the central Queen Charlotte before being taken back to their ship, which now is returning to Victoria.

Betrays Motto

SOUTHAMPTON, England (Reuters)—John Denzil Fox-Strangways, 52, heir to the earldom of Ilchester, whose family motto is "deeds without word," was fined $5 ($14) in court here Friday for swearing in a railway car.

Carpenters to Probe Welfare Policies

NANAIMO (CP)—Local 527 of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America (CLC) has formed a committee to investigate reports that the social welfare department is refusing unemployed workers benefits and suggesting that they mortgage their homes so they can clothe and feed their families.

Union members have also charged that the department is refusing to assist anyone who becomes involved in construction or speculative building on borrowed money, despite the fact that any money borrowed is earmarked for material purchases only.

Millions 'Addicted' to Laxatives

CHICAGO (AP)—A doctor said Friday at least 100,000,000 Americans are addicted to laxatives they don't need.

Dr. Charles Hook of Augusta, Ga., writing in the current issue of Today's Health Magazine, said superstition and advertising have brainwashed the public into believing regularly on old-fashioned habits, half-truths, incorrect beliefs and modern advertising.

"Your doctor knows nothing could be farther from the truth," Hook said. The idea of regularity is based, Hook reported, on old-fashioned habits, half-truths, incorrect beliefs and modern advertising.

Green Tags Speech 'Utterly Destructive'

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Canada's External Affairs Minister Howard Green said Friday night the Khrushchev speech was "utterly destructive, particularly unfortunate after the helpful speech made by Mr. Eisenhower yesterday."

Green, in an extremely busy day, came out of a meeting of the assembly's steering committee to meet reporters.

A luncheon he gave for high diplomats was delayed until 3 p.m. by Khrushchev's speech. Among those attending were British Foreign Secretary Lord Home, Indian Defence Minister Krishna Menon, Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko of Russia and Russian Ambassador Valerian Zorin.

Asked whether they talked about the speech, Green grinned and said:

"All the time."

With Green in his meeting with Canadian correspondents was Lt.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns, head of the Canadian delegation to the 10-power disarmament negotiations which collapsed with a Communist walk-out in Geneva in June.

Burns said he found only small changes—and "not very helpful ones at that"—in Khrushchev's outline of disarmament proposals.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

Grown-ups have only a vague idea of how it feels to be a child. Sometimes a flash of insight shows them a glimpse of that country where they used to live, with all its hopes and fears and dreams in such vivid colors. But they can only see a fraction of it.

When one of my own little boys proudly gives me a drawing of a deer that he has done for me, with five legs and an egg-shaped body and a happy smile on its face, I try to imagine what is going through his mind. But I can't catch it.

It's equally hard to imagine how the child feels when he is deeply and wretchedly afraid, having done something he knows to be wrong. My older boy recently broke the handle of my father's Hardy landing-net, a thing that can never quite be replaced.

'It Was Out of My Reach'

He broke into tears, and said he was going to work around the house and save up his nickels and dimes until he had paid for a new handle. He cried for some time after that. I tried to imagine how he felt about what had happened, but it was a long way out of my reach.

Last evening I got to talking in a cafe to a lady about childhood experiences, and she told me something that had happened to her.

"I was very absent-minded as a small child," she said. "So much so that I wasn't trusted to go on errands, in

When someone found this piece of fisherman's gear hidden in some bushes, and the boy confessed that he had broken it lifting too large a weight of dead fish from the poisoned lake, I felt inclined to spank him.

Then I saw that his face—usually full of mischief—was tense and white with terror. Had I done that—made him so afraid? I told him that I wasn't going to hurt him, but I was sorry that he had broken his grandfather's net, and not told me about it before.

She Told Her Father

"I told my father that I had lost the money and forgotten the message. He said he would telephone to my mother and find out what I was supposed to get. He came away from the phone and seemed to pick up something, and he said:

"Isn't that funny, you must have dropped it just as you came in here."

"And I was so much relieved. I think I persuaded myself at once that it was true. Some years later I got to know that he had just taken out two dollars of his own to spare my feelings, and I appreciated very much what he had done for me."

As the lady told me this, I thought about the times that I had seen a scared, bewildered look on a child's face, when he was about to be punished.

How often do these "deserved" punishments seem like injustice to a child who has got mixed up while trying to do what he thinks is the proper thing?

And it occurred to me that I had not often been as understanding as that father who "found" the $2.

Boy Gets Drunk By Sniffing Gasoline Tank

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, MD

"Dear Dr. Molner: I have a five-year-old son who takes the cap off the gas tank of our car to smell the gasoline. He has been drunk several times as a result. Will this affect his health? What can we do to stop him? I have punished him awful, but he still does it.—R.M."

This is an odd sort of thing—but of all the millions of children in the world, thousands possess unusual traits. This one I haven't heard of before.

A casual sniff of gasoline isn't going to hurt anybody. But when you can see signs that make you say the child is "drunk" from inhaling the fumes, it is quite obvious that the little fellow's notion is decidedly harmful. What you describe as "drunk" is what I would call a toxic (or poisonous) reaction and is dangerous.

SOME QUIRK
It could be, of course, that punishing him so hard may have, by some quirk of the childish mind made him think that there is something highly desirable in smelling the gasoline tank.

My advice is this. Don't let him do it any more. Not at all. Don't punish him. Don't tell him not to. Ignore it—except for one thing: Buy one of those locks for the gas tank, which costs only a few dollars, so he can't get the cap open. In a few short weeks he'll forget about the whole business. And so can you.

"Dear Mr. Molner: I have a perfectly healthy six-year-old child who two weeks after recovering from measles began having seizures, about a week apart, lasting from three to five minutes. Could measles be the cause?—Mrs. M.M."

Measles can sometimes be a factor in initiating seizures, but the important question may very well include an electroencephalogram or "brain wave" test to disclose what the situation is. Depending on the results, treatment is available, perhaps with the use of the fairly new and very successful anti-convulsant medications.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Restaurants that serve iodized salt are an abomination. What does iodine do for salt, outside of making it sickeningly sweet?—R.H.D."

I disagree with you utterly. The amount of potassium iodide (which is what they use to iodize the salt) is so slight that neither you nor anyone else can detect it by taste.

For some reason, you are just hunting for something to complain about. Why don't you have a friend get some non-iodized salt and some iodized salt, and give you tastes of each, to see whether you can tell which is which? You won't be able to. On the other hand, the tiny trace of iodine in the salt has saved unnumbered people from goiter. So, sir, stop fussing.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Can you tell me anything about the merits or otherwise of a treatment for obesity by injection with human chorionic gonadotropin, as announced by a doctor in Rome?—D.L.C."

I'm not familiar with it—but I want no truck with the use of hormone preparations for reducing. Too many side effects.

Most overweight people don't really want to reduce—they want to eat as much as ever, and to have some easy method of eating without getting fat. Why believe in magic or fairy stories when the real answer is so obvious? I heartily enjoy eating, myself, and—against my own good advice—sometimes pack on too many extra pounds. But I'll tell you this: I can take 'em off again! And I do it in the simplest, most effective way ever devised: Cut down the calories. No "easy" ways of reducing for me, because "reducing without dieting" is in the same class with "get rich quick."

Iron Union 'War' Flares Up Here

Victoria is shaping up as a Bridge, Structural and Ornamental-Ironworkers (AFL-CIO) "major battleground" in the fight between two rival unions for the right to represent ironworkers in B.C.

The long-standing dispute between an international union and the breakaway Canadian union flared up yesterday as picketing was started at the Topaz Avenue substation of the B.C. Electric.

INJUNCTION SOUGHT

Norm Eddison, business agent for Canadian Ironworkers Local No. 1, an independent union, said last night the picketers left the site early in the afternoon. To make sure they don't return, he said, his union instructed its lawyer to apply for an injunction to prevent interruption of the work.

Pickets were put up early yesterday morning on the jobsite where two workers employed by a sub-contractor, Island-Reinforcing Service, were not members of the International Association of

The men are members of the rival Canadian union.

Mr. Eddison said the brief and unsuccessful picketing was designed to "push our Canadian union around... and they found out we don't get pushed easily."

The business agent said "British Columbia ironworkers are afforded the right in law to join the union of their choice."

DEATH THROES

"That right cannot be removed by such desperate measures taken in the death throes of an organization headed for ignominious oblivion."

The Canadian union was formed by a break-away group early this year after the international organization forced removal from office of three top men in Local 97 at that time. One of the deposed officers was Mr. Eddison.

Misery of Sinus Relieved

A vaccine that is swallowed like an ordinary medicine is credited by sufferers all over the world with the relief of sinus, bronchial asthma and nasal catarrh. The vaccine, known as Lantigen "B", is taken a few drops at a time in water. Once absorbed by the mucous membranes of the nose, mouth, throat and intestines, it stimulates the production of "anti-bodies", the system's natural antibodies, which attack and destroy the germs and build up the body's resistance.

Benefits Young and Old
Taken regularly, Lantigen "B" frees breathing, removes stuffy headach, relieves congestion. The vaccine is safe even for young people, invalids and the aged, and does not produce harmful after-effects or interfere with other treatments. It is simple and pleasant to take. Recent medical announcements have indicated it is much more convenient to every way to swallow a vaccine than to have it injected.

Grateful Users Testify
Says Wm. Wilkinson of Liverpool: "Three years ago, I contracted chronic bronchitis and treatment did not seem to have any effect on me. I decided to try Lantigen 'B'. After the first week's treatment I found in my improvement a wonderful improvement in my general condition."

Two Red Spacemen Lost?

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A U.S. air force authority said Friday he believed Russia tried to put two men in space and failed. He said he believed they "clobbered them."

Brig. Gen. Don Flickinger, director of bio-astronautics for the air research and development command, told an Air Force Association convention an unidentified object was tracked during the past week and apparently was intended to go into orbit.

He said it was his "speculation" that the Russians had two men aboard the vehicle and were attempting a space "spectacular" to coincide with Nikita Khrushchev's appearance at the U.N.

Flickinger, in addition to his air force position, is a consultant in the Mercury man-space project of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

He said that he considered accurate a London Daily Express report Sept. 14 that the Russians had lofted two men to a height of 62 miles in a ballistic capsule and recovered them safely.

The Russians never have confirmed the feat.

Flickinger said he expected that now the Soviet effort to put men in orbit had failed the Russians would confirm the 62-mile high ride reported by the London newspaper. He acknowledge he was speculating but said he believed "they tried to put two men up and clobbered them."

Lt. Gen. Bernard Schriever, research and development commander, disclosed at the same time, that the air force will launch its first test model of the Samos reconnaissance satellite before Nov. 8.

The Samos eventually will carry cameras for reconnaissance missions while circling the earth in a polar orbit.

Schriever said it faced a long research and development phase.

Maj. Gen. O. J. Rittland, commander of the services' ballistic missile division, disclosed the air force is studying the possibility of developing satellites that would detect enemy ballistic missiles and destroy them with rockets the moment they are launched.

Scrap Likely 'Princesses' For Sale Says CPR

At last it's official—the CPR announced yesterday it was offering for sale the veteran coast ferries Princess Elizabeth and Princess Joan.

The news came only hours after Premier Bennett disclosed the B.C. government plans an immediate start on construction of a third ferry for its rival Swartz Bay-Tsawwassen service.

Since the two Princess boats were taken off the night run between Victoria and Vancouver in February, 1959, after 29 years, the CPR has carried out extensive surveys as they lay at the Belleville Street docks in the Inner Harbor. It found modernization costs were unjustified.

Now, it appears virtually certain, the old ships, built in Glasgow and commissioned in 1930, will be sold for scrap.

Use Care, Doctors Told

Deafness Can Follow Use of Antibiotics

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—The incorrect use of certain antibiotics can make patients deaf.

This was the warning given Thursday during a panel discussion at the 30th annual congress of L'Association des Medecins de Langue Francaise du Canada.

EXTREME CARE

The panel, presided over by Dr. Fernand Montreuil of Montreal's Notre Dame Hospital warned family doctors that powerful antibiotic doses should be given with extreme care.

Dr. Montreuil, president of his hospital's speech and hearing centre, said he knew of a case where antibiotics used to cure a young patient of meningitis brought on deafness.

He said that in this case, the use was a matter of life and death and only in such extreme cases should heroic doses of dangerous antibiotics be prescribed.

ALCOHOLIC NEGLECTED

Dr. Andre Boudreau, director of the Quebec provincial government alcoholism bureau, told the 400 delegates to the convention earlier that family doctors should pay more attention to the alcoholic.

He said the family doctor, because he enjoys the affection and confidence of his patients, has a primary role to play in the rehabilitation of the alcoholic.

Bonner Inclined To Agree

Attorney-General Bonner yesterday indicated a measure of agreement with B.C. hotelmen who earlier this year asked that a greater onus be placed on minors caught in licensed premises.

But he said no amendments to existing legislation are needed to accomplish this end.

MORE ONUS

Sentencing provisions for minors caught in places where liquor is served have sufficient latitude to permit the courts to place more of the onus on minors.

At a convention last June hotelmen said that a $10 fine for a minor and a $300 fine for the waiter who served him is unjust.

"There is a good case to be made out for placing more of the onus on minors, but it is something which must remain at the discretion of the courts," said the attorney-general.

Swiss Laboratory
Tested Treatment

Throughout the world, many thousands of people who had long suffered from Eczema and other skin troubles have found relief thanks to the remarkable development by Swiss chemists. Since these chemists were able to process a natural remedy extracted from pure vegetable oils, it has been possible to treat with success many of the most obstinate cases of Eczema, Leg Ulcers, Furunculosis (boils) as well as Infantile Eczema.

The "F 99" preparations are now available in drug stores in more than 65 countries. In all these countries "F 99" is being used with remarkable results even in cases where all ordinary treatments have failed. ## Unidentified Sub Seen Off Maine

LUBEC, Maine (UPI) — Crewmen aboard a fishing vessel have reported sighting an unidentified submarine in coastal waters off the easternmost tip of Maine near an isolated multi-million-dollar U.S. naval radio station, it was disclosed Friday.

Naval and Coast Guard officials in Boston said they had received reports of the unidentified submarine, but refused to release details, calling the information still classified.

PTAs Back Parking Crackdown

Greater Victoria school board's stand in refusing to provide student parking at Oak Bay High School won support from Victoria's District Parent-Teacher Council last night.

Council executive had voted earlier this week to back the board's stand.

Council president Mrs. B. A.

Byers said there was a continuing need for classrooms and asked: "Is parking space more important than classrooms?"

School trustee Mrs. A. B. Thompson said cost of black-topping the area would be prohibitive and added if it was done for one school it would have to be done for all.

The Mask Removed

SOVIET PREMIER NIKITA Khrushchev has doffed his smiling mask of the champion of humanity to blatantly expose himself before the world as a man no more interested in working toward peace than his ill-starred predecessors in the bloody-handed hierarchy of the Kremlin.

Harshly rejecting President Eisenhower's move toward conciliation on the subject of disarmament, Mr. Khrushchev again presented his impracticable plan designed to strip the western hemisphere of its defenses to leave the Soviet Union the only effective nuclear power in the world.

It is as obvious to Mr. Khrushchev as it is to the rest of the world that this plan is as unacceptable as it is unworkable. His very mention of it implies that he has no desire in easing the terrible threat which hangs daily over all our heads.

Nor was Mr. Khrushchev satisfied in condemning the world to another long period of tortured precipice-hanging. He launched out on the subject of Africa, playing to the new gallery of recently admitted Afro-Asian nations.

Ignoring Mr. Eisenhower's far-reaching and generous five-point plan for the trouble spots, he demanded the immediate withdrawal of all colonial powers from their African dependencies. Such a move would suit his purpose admirably. Communism thrives in unorganized and illiterate countries and he can see a great opening for his technicians and political bully-boys once all semblance of authority is removed.

He has already had one setback in this field, but it is patently obvious that he is anxious to try again.

Following up this theme he roundly attacked the very men who thwarted his Congo invasion, UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld and Colonel Mobutu. It was here that Mr. Khrushchev plumbed the depths in demanding the removal of Mr. Hammarskjöld and his replacement by an executive committee (to which the Soviet Union would belong) with each member carrying with him the power of the veto, thus making sure that Russia could halt every move that did not suit Communist purposes.

Though it is too early to assess the attitude of the new Afro-Asian nations toward his proposals, Mr. Khrushchev has accomplished one thing at least: that is the closer welding together of the Western nations. To the Western world it must appear as never before that its only hope is to strengthen its unity—and its defenses.

Coming after Mr. Eisenhower's statesmanlike utterance, with all personal feelings subdued, the long-awaited Khrushchev speech—with its tone of truculence and ascription—will occasion deep disappointment.

Good News, Mr. Bennett!

OUTSIDE government circles at least, Premier Bennett took everyone by surprise with his announcement that subject to cabinet approval—a foregone conclusion—a third ferry will be put under construction immediately to augment the Swartz Bay-Tsawwassen service.

It was a pleasant surprise indeed, especially for the British Columbia shipbuilding industry. If the government adheres to the policy of having its ferries built at home there will be valuable work for at least one west coast shipyard and possibly others if the government decides to spread the job around. The department of national defence has done that in the past, by letting one yard build a hull and another finish it off.

In times like the present a shipbuilding contract at a price in the neighborhood of $3,000,000 will be of great assistance in relieving unemployment. It will be of particular benefit to an industry whose survival is of the utmost importance to the Dominion, to British Columbia and to Victoria, whose two big shipyards are a vital part of the city's economy. Although he steadfastly refuses to disclose the profit-and-loss statement of the new provincial ferry service, Premier Bennett obviously must be more than satisfied with the way it is going.

Few government ventures of any sort, anywhere in the country can have made such an auspicious start as this. Though new to operation of anything bigger than ferries substituting for highway bridges, the management of the new route had spectacular success from the beginning, notwithstanding the fact that it was entering into competition with numerous other ferry services, long established and heavily patronized.

When the Province, confronted by a strike emergency, first announced intention to break into the Island-mainland ferry business there was fairly general expectation that public subsidy would have to be added to the fare structure. It is possible that the encouraging patronage which is being received will obviate any necessity for subsidies?

Have Important Roles

THE news that both Prime Minister Diefenbaker of Canada and Prime Minister Macmillan of Britain have reversed their earlier decisions and will now attend the United Nations General Assembly will be welcomed in particular by the middle powers and non-nuclear nations of the world.

There is little doubt that this change of mind was largely brought about by the conciliatory tone of President Eisenhower's speech Thursday before the world organization. Mr. Eisenhower made it clear to his country's allies and opponents alike that the United States would in future adopt a more co-operative course in international problems, specifically in the field of disarmament discussions.

In his realignment of American policy, Mr. Eisenhower deliberately turned his back on the earlier attitude of the United States which many western nations viewed as both too narrow and too unbending.

With the way now open, both Mr. Macmillan and Mr. Diefenbaker can play their important yet different parts in the debate: Mr. Macmillan in the role of mediator between the United States and the Soviet, and Mr. Diefenbaker as spokesmen for the non-nuclear nations.

Too Soon Ended

THE reminder to the public to put clocks back one hour last night is also a reminder of the foolishness of ending daylight saving time so early.

Here we are at the beginning of the so-called Indian Summer when an extra hour of daylight is worth far more in the evening than in the morning with few people abroad to use it. That hour also is worth more in October than in the middle of summer when the evenings are long anyhow.

This is a time of year when tourists unaccompanied by children are exploring the Island and the rest of British Columbia in larger numbers than the provincial government seems to realize; when the evenings are still warm enough for many outdoor activities; when gardens need the work which autumn demands and which with one more hour of daylight after work could be done on week days instead of breaking into the weekends. The saving in electricity bills alone would be considerable.

Why the B.C. government considers it necessary to end daylight saving time a month earlier than many other parts of the continent remains a mystery.

What good does it do? Farmers and their livestock are used to summer time by now and another month of it should not bother them in the least. Nor should households be upset, because children's schedules are well adjusted to the advanced clock after five months, and anyhow the bedtimes of most of the younger ones come at dusk or after dark even with daylight saving in effect. It is only in midsummer that prolonged daylight makes it hard to get them to sleep.

As far as one can see, nobody gains much if anything and hundreds of thousands of people lose by this too hasty return to standard time. So what's the point of it?

O born in days when wits were fresh and clear,
And life ran gaily as the sparkling Thames;
Before this strange disease of modern life,
With its sick hurry, its divided aims,
Its heads o'ertax'd, its palsied hearts, was rife—

Fly hence, our contact fear!
Still fly, plunge deeper in the bowering wood!
Averse, as Dido did with gesture stern
From her false friend's approach
In Hades turn,
Wave us away, and keep thy solitude!

Our Lopsided Trade Balance

By LEWIS MILLIGAN

ONE of the arguments put forth in favor of a greater influx of immigrants was that, by increasing the population, it would provide a larger home market for Canadian products and thus offset our dependence upon export trade for the sale of our surpluses. That was quite logical, and if we had kept our home market for ourselves all might have been well; but what happened?

Our home market is flooded with foreign-made goods of almost every description, except wheat and other farm products, which are costing us more to produce, subsidize and store away than they are worth for sale.

Is it any wonder that we have several hundred thousand unemployed? It is not owing to our lack of the "know-how" or the latest production equipment that these foreign goods are pouring into our home market and putting so many of our people out of work. Our exports consist chiefly of raw materials, which return to us in manufactured goods at prices with which our factories cannot compete.

"No nation was ever ruined by trade," said Benjamin Franklin. But the word "trade" implies a reciprocal interchange of goods or services on a fair competitive basis for both parties. The balance of trade may vary from time to time in favor of one side or the other; but a permanent one-sided trade is worse than no trade at all. No business can prosper or even carry on with a chronic debit balance.

The lopsided trade between Canada and the United States alone has handicapped Canadian industry, which has been able to carry on only by American investments which secure control of natural resources development and large industries.

Just as if that was not enough, our home market is invaded by German and Japanese products, which are depleting the sale of home-made goods, putting more Canadians out of work and exporting Canadian capital to those countries. British products are also being imported, but there is some reciprocity in that trade. We won the war against Germany and Japan, but in trade those two nations are winning the peace, so far as trade is concerned.

A teacher in a Toronto school of languages told me the other day that she had been tutoring a German woman, the wife of the manager of the Volkswagen company, in English. In the course of their conversation, the woman proudly said: "We have conquered the world with that car." And it would seem they have.

And the Japanese have certainly conquered the Canadian market in electrical appliances. Recently I was looking for a transistor radio and was shown a vest-pocket-sized set for $24.95. It was made in Japan. I was told it was their "best seller." Other sets were priced at $34.95. A few years ago I examined a small transistor set in Vancouver; it was priced at $79, plus a local sales tax. I turned it down and later bought a small battery set for $17, bearing the name, "Wales." I presumed it was made in Britain. When I had it repaired in Toronto, I was told it was made in Japan. The moral is obvious.

The Germans and Japanese have made a marvellous recovery from their losses in the war, and we should not be jealous of their success; but part of us desire to defend our industries from these foreign invasions it is not selfishness or spite on our part but a matter of survival.

Reports from Ottawa

THE wood buffalo, discovered alive after 20 years in which scientists mourned it as extinct, will be set up in business again on land its ancestors roamed.

Government wildlife officials like Dr. W. E. Stevens are excitedly scouting the northwest for new buffalo range, determined not to miss a second chance to save the wood bison.

The range must be large enough to support a good-sized herd; must be wild, unsettled country with no farms to complicate matters, and must be far enough from the herds of plains buffalo that there will be no interbreeding.

One possibility is the aspen parkland of northern Saskatchewan, where no buffalo have lived for 75 years. Another area Stevens has in mind is in the Northwest Territories, west of Great Slave Lake.

When the sites have been selected, the Wildlife Service intends to send a winter tractor-train expedition to the northwestern corner of Wood Buffalo National Park, where a herd of purebred wood bison has been found, and bring out enough young bulls and cows to start the new herds.

The wood buffalo, for size and weight the king of his species, would not have faced extinction if, 35 years ago, some Ottawa bureaucrats had remembered about the bees and the flowers.

The story starts in 1906, when Interior Minister Frank Oliver persuaded the Laurier cabinet to let him buy 250 head of plains buffalo for $200,000 from the Walking Coyote herd on the Flathead Indian reservation in Montana. Many Americans were furious when the deal went through, for this herd was the largest in the States. At the shipping point this resentment all but erupted into violence when the buffalo were loaded into cattle cars for the 1,200-mile railway trip to Wainwright, Alta.

By 1925 the herd at Wainwright had so increased that the range there could not support it. But in northern Alberta the 17,300 square miles of Wood Buffalo National Park supported only a couple of thousand wood bison—the descendants of some 300 that were the last survivors of the subspecies when the government banned hunting them in 1891.

With ill-considered conservationist zeal, the government moved 6,673 plains buffalo into the park. The native wood buffalo were swamped by the influx. It is estimated that by 1940 there were no pure-blooded wood buffalo left—only plains bison and hybrids that today total about 16,000.

For years government zoologists hoped that maybe in some remote valley some of the wood bison had escaped the intermingling of genes—but none was ever found.

Then, in 1957, wildlife officers taking an aerial census of the park buffalo spotted some bison in a remote area where none had been reported before. Moreover, they were 75 miles from the nearest hybrid herd—and the terrain between was muskeg, a natural barrier that buffalo could cross only in winter, when the animals travel least.

With hope renewed, wildlife officer N. S. Novakowski of Port Smith led a party across the frozen muskeg early last year. They found a herd of 200 animals, shot five for study, and from the size and coloring of the beasts—20 per cent larger and much darker than the plains bison—Novakowski was almost certain he was witnessing a miracle. Back in Ottawa, caliper measurements of the skulls of the five specimens shot confirmed the miracle—the wood buffalo (Bison bison Athabascæ Rhoads) still lives.

A Dog's Vices

By GREGORY CLARK

MOST dogs start their domestic careers with bad habits. It takes weeks and sometimes months to cure a puppy of its bad habits and teach it that it has to go outside to relieve itself and that, however cute it is for a time, it is not really acceptable to chew at the trouser cuffs, jump up on ladies' nylons and howl in the night.

Thus a dog's life starts out nurtured in patience and benevolence, and as a rule, the results are good. A devoted and sociable little animal is knit into the family and the home.

But now and then a dog's vices are accepted, through long and casual acquaintance, by its owners. And you get, at the age of four to six years, a surly dog, a mean dog, one that is a nuisance to everybody but its owners. Indeed, there are a few dog owners who are flattered by the fact that their dogs appear to dislike everyone but them.

But an ill-trained, ill-mannered dog is in fact a financial hazard and liability. Every now and then a court action brings this to light. One of these days a court decision for $10,000 or $100,000 damages will result in a great many worthless dogs being disposed of by thoughtless owners who can only be roused by the $ sign.

Through Other Eyes

(From "Industry")

WE are prone enough to berate ourselves concerning our various social habits (or should that be anti-social?) that it is perhaps not out of place to record once in a while the comments which visitors from afar make about us when they return home. In this connection the following letter which appeared recently in an English provincial newspaper is of some interest:

"Sir—I have just returned from a month's holiday in Canada. I travelled 1,500 miles by car. I visited Victoria, Ottawa, Niagara Falls, the Thousand Islands, and Kingston.

I spent 10 days in Vancouver and two weeks in Toronto, visiting every part of these two cities. I did not see enough litter to fill one dustbin.

"The fine for throwing trash on to the highways is $50 (near £20). Tables and benches are placed along the great roads at suitable spots for picnics, with the inevitable trash-can for rubbish. Rarely does one see a hedge or a wall before a house—just a well-kept lawn free from litter. Canadians are indeed litter-conscious."

Good to know someone gives us full marks for something.

U.S. Elections

Admirable Restraint

By MARQUIS CHILDS

WITH the temptation strong as it must be to shout, "Who lost Cuba to the Communists?" the Democrats have thus far in the U.S. election campaign shown admirable restraint. The contrast with 1952 is startling—when most Republicans from General Eisenhower and Richard Nixon on down were shouting, "Who lost China?" and the Kenners and the McCarthys were trumpeting, "Twenty years of treason."

It is, of course, early; and when the heat is turned up in the last weeks the conspicuous targets of Cuba and the other failures in the foreign field may prove irresistible. But the restraint shown so far is all on the plus side, if not for the Democrats certainly for the nation as a whole.

A minor exception is the effort of Senators James Eastland of Mississippi and Thomas J. Dodd of Connecticut, Democrats, to use the power of the Senate internal security subcommittee to level a McCarthyist type of attack at the State Department. They charged that certain unnamed officials in the department were responsible for Fidel Castro's coming to power. These allegations were based on the testimony of two political ambassadors who had qualified for the post in Havana by contributing generously to the Republican campaign chest.

A symptom of the changed times was the way in which this damp squib sputtered out. Secretary of State Herter said he was outraged at charges that were scarcely worthy of denial. With a little more frankness he might have added that the real cause for blame was in sending to a sensitive spot in the troubled Caribbean two flat-cat ambassadors who could not possibly be expected to understand the Batista dictatorship and the once-popular revolution that overthrew it.

But the Eastland-Dodd alliance is not to be laughed off. They have made it their business to try to compel the Nobel Prize-winning scientist, Linus Pauling, to turn over to them the names of other scientists who helped circulate petitions calling for an end of nuclear testing. Pauling has taken the issue to the courts and will carry it to the Supreme Court itself.

As he is one of the most distinguished scientists in the world, his fellow scientists both here at home and elsewhere around the globe have begun to protest indignantly at what seems to them an effort to persecute him for his political views. If the courts, for legal reasons having little to do with the facts in the case, deny his request to enjoin the Internal Security Committee, Pauling is very likely to go to jail. This is an advertisement that can do far more harm to America in the uncommitted nations and even in Western Europe than all the Communist propaganda that Moscow can put out.

The question of suspension of nuclear tests with proper inspection and control is an enormously complicated one and, conceivably, Pauling in his fervent advocacy has gone too far. But conceivably, too, in making himself one of the principal propagandists for resuming testing, regardless of the determination of the Eisenhower administration to persist in exploring every possibility for an agreement, Dodd has also gone too far.

It is not that questions of foreign policy can be kept out of the campaign. Vice-President Nixon may be telling Americans just what they want to hear—that the United States is the biggest, the bravest, the boldest, the best in everything. But he can scarcely, being a realist himself, expect to silence Senator Kennedy by accusing him of peddling gloom and doom.

The voter is entitled to a discussion of the mistakes in foreign policy as seen by the opposition. And this on broad and general lines Kennedy is undertaking to do. That is not, as he insists, downgrading America. Presumably at a later date he will come up with the specifics on what he believes must be done to reverse the trend that he charges is running against this country.

But discussion is one thing and the wild Communist-baiting the Republicans indulged in eight years ago is quite another.

If under the Truman administration two trusted employees of the National Security Agency had escaped the country and defected publicly in Moscow, one can imagine the screams of outrage that would have gone up. Yet, so far as this reporter has observed, no highly-placed Democrat has taken up this cry over what in so huge a security-intelligence apparatus must be accounted a tragic and perhaps a stupid accident. It is a time for sobriety and maturity and, fortunately, the worst fevers of that other era seem to have subsided.

'Princesses' For Sale Says CPR

At last it's official—the CPR announced yesterday it was offering for sale the veteran coast ferries Princess Elizabeth and Princess Joan.

The news came only hours after Premier Bennett disclosed the B.C. government plans an immediate start on construction of a third ferry for its rival Swartz Bay-Taswassen service.

Since the two Princess boats were taken off the night run between Victoria and Vancouver in February, 1959, after 29 years, the CPR has carried out extensive surveys as they lay at the Belleville Street docks in the Inner Harbor. It found modernization costs were unjustified.

Now, it appears virtually certain, the old ships, built in Glasgow and commissioned in 1930, will be sold for scrap.

Use Care, Doctors Told

Deafness Can Follow Use of Antibiotics

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—The incorrect use of certain antibiotics can make patients deaf.

This was the warning given Thursday during a panel discussion at the 30th annual congress of L'Association des Medecins de Langue Francaise du Canada.

EXTREME CARE

The panel, presided over by Dr. Fernand Montreuil of Montreal's Notre Dame Hospital warned family doctors that powerful antibiotic doses should be given with extreme care.

Dr. Montreuil, president of his hospital's speech and hearing centre, said he knew of a case where antibiotics used to cure a young patient of meningitis brought on deafness.

He said that in this case, the use was a matter of life and death and only in such extreme cases should heroic doses of dangerous antibiotics be prescribed.

ALCOHOLIC NEGLECTED

Dr. Andre Boudreau, director of the Quebec provincial government alcoholism bureau, told the 400 delegates to the convention earlier that family doctors should pay more attention to the alcoholic.

He said the family doctor, because he enjoys the affection and confidence of his patients, has a primary role to play in the rehabilitation of the alcoholic.

Boat Trip Scheduled For Blind

Capital City Yacht Club will take 27 members of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind boating and fishing today. Lunch will be served and prizes awarded the best fishermen.

With Hotelmen

Bonner Inclined To Agree

Attorney-General Bonner yesterday indicated a measure of agreement with B.C. hotelmen who earlier this year asked that a greater onus be placed on minors caught in licensed premises.

But he said no amendments to existing legislation are needed to accomplish this end.

MORE ONUS

Sentencing provisions for minors caught in places where liquor is served have sufficient latitude to permit the courts to place more of the onus on minors.

At a convention last June hotelmen said that a $10 fine for a minor and a $300 fine for the waiter who served him is unjust.

"There is a good case to be made out for placing more of the onus on minors, but it is something which must remain at the discretion of the courts," said the attorney-general.

ANCIENT LINK

The dingo, wild dog found in parts of Australia, somewhat resembles the pariah dogs of India and Java.

British Columbia, Victoria, Saturday, Sept. 24, 1960

Greater Victoria school board's stand in refusing to provide student parking at Oak Bay High School won support from Victoria and District Parent-Teacher Council last night.

Council executive had voted earlier this week to back the board's stand.

Council president Mrs. B. A. Byers said there was a continuing need for classrooms and asked: "Is parking space more important than classrooms?"

School trustee Mrs. A. B. Thompson said cost of black-topping the area would be prohibitive and added if it was done for one school it would have to be done for all.

The Mask Removed

SOVIET PREMIER NIKITA Khrushchev has doffed his smiling mask of the champion of humanity to blatantly expose himself before the world as a man no more interested in working toward peace than his ill-starred predecessors in the bloody-handed hierarchy of the Kremlin.

Harshly rejecting President Eisenhower's move toward conciliation on the subject of disarmament, Mr. Khrushchev again presented his impracticable plan designed to strip the western hemisphere of its defences to leave the Soviet Union the only effective nuclear power in the world.

It is as obvious to Mr. Khrushchev as it is to the rest of the world that this plan is as unacceptable as it is unworkable. His very mention of it implies that he has no desire in easing the terrible threat which hangs daily over all our heads.

Nor was Mr. Khrushchev satisfied in condemning the world to another long period of tortured peace-hanging. He launched out on the subject of Africa, playing to the new gallery of recently admitted Afro-Asian nations.

Ignoring Mr. Eisenhower's far-reaching and generous five-point plan for the trouble spots, he demanded the immediate withdrawal of all colonial powers from their African dependencies. Such a move would suit his purpose admirably. Communism thrives in unorganized and illiterate countries and he can see a great opening for his technicians and political bully-boys once all semblance of authority is removed.

Following up this theme he roundly attacked the very men who thwarted his Congo invasion, UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld and Colonel Mobutu. It was here that Mr. Khrushchev plumbed the depths in demanding the removal of Mr. Hammarskjöld and his replacement by an executive committee (to which the Soviet Union would belong) with each member carrying with him the power of the veto, thus making sure that Russia could halt every move that did not suit Communist purposes.

Though it is too early to assess the attitude of the new Afro-Asian nations toward his proposals, Mr. Khrushchev has accomplished one thing at least: that is the closer welding together of the Western nations. To the Western world it must appear as never before that its only hope is to strengthen its unity—and its defences.

Coming after Mr. Eisenhower's statesmanlike utterance, with all personal feelings subdued, the long-awaited Khrushchev speech—with its tone of truculence and ascerbity—will occasion deep disappointment.

Good News, Mr. Bennett!

OUTSIDE government circles at least, Premier Bennett took everyone by surprise with his announcement that subject to cabinet approval—a foregone conclusion—a third ferry will be put under construction immediately to augment the Swartz Bay-Tsawwassen service.

It was a pleasant surprise indeed, especially for the British Columbia shipbuilding industry. If the government adheres to the policy of having its ferries built at home there will be valuable work for at least one west coast shipyard and possibly others if the government decides to spread the job around. The department of national defence has done that in the past, by letting one yard build a hull and another finish it off.

In times like the present a shipbuilding contract at a price in the neighborhood of $3,000,000 will be of great assistance in relieving unemployment. It will be of particular benefit to an industry whose survival is of the utmost importance to the Dominion, to British Columbia and to Victoria, whose two big shipyards are a vital part of the city's economy.

Although he steadfastly refuses to disclose the profit-and-loss statement of the new provincial ferry service, Premier Bennett obviously must be more than satisfied with the way it is going.

Few government ventures of any sort anywhere in the country can have made such an auspicious start as this. Though new to operation of anything bigger than ferries substituting for highway bridges, the management of the new route had spectacular success from the beginning, notwithstanding the fact that it was entering into competition with numerous other ferry services, long established and heavily patronized.

When the Province, confronted by a strike emergency, first announced intention to break into the Island-mainland ferry business there was fairly general expectation that public subsidy would have to be added to the fare structure. Is it possible that the encouraging patronage which is being received will obviate any necessity for subsidies?

Have Important Roles

THE news that both Prime Minister Diefenbaker of Canada and Prime Minister Macmillan of Britain have reversed their earlier decisions and will now attend the United Nations General Assembly will be welcomed in particular by the middle powers and non-nuclear nations of the world.

There is little doubt that this change of mind was largely brought about by the conciliatory tone of President Eisenhower's speech Thursday before the world organization. Mr. Eisenhower made it clear to his country's allies and opponents alike that the United States would in future adopt a more co-operative course in international problems, specifically in the field of disarmament discussions.

In his realignment of American policy, Mr. Eisenhower deliberately turned his back on the earlier attitude of the United States which many western nations viewed as both too narrow and too unbending.

With the way now open, both Mr. Macmillan and Mr. Diefenbaker can play their important yet different parts in the debate: Mr. Macmillan in the role of mediator between the United States and the Soviet, and Mr. Diefenbaker as spokesman for the non-nuclear nations.

Too Soon Ended

THE reminder to the public to put clocks back one hour last thing tonight is also a reminder of the foolishness of ending daylight saving time so early.

Here we are at the beginning of the so-called Indian Summer when an extra hour of daylight is worth far more in the evening than in the morning with few people abroad to use it. That hour also is worth more in October than in the middle of summer when the evenings are long anyhow.

This is a time of year when tourists unaccompanied by children are exploring the Island and the rest of British Columbia in larger numbers than the provincial government seems to realize; when the evenings are still warm enough for many outdoor activities; when gardens need the work which autumn demands and which with one more hour of daylight after work could be done on week days instead of breaking into the weekends. The saving in electricity bills alone would be considerable.

Why the B.C. government considers it necessary to end daylight saving time a month earlier than many other parts of the continent remains a mystery.

What good does it do? Farmers and their livestock are used to summer time by now and another month of it should not bother them in the least. Nor should households be upset, because children's schedules are well adjusted to the advanced clock after five months, and anyhow the bedtimes of most of the younger ones come at dusk or after dark even with daylight saving in effect. It is only in midsummer that prolonged daylight makes it hard to get them to sleep.

As far as one can see, nobody gains much if anything and hundreds of thousands of people lose by this too hasty return to standard time. So what's the point of it?

fresh and clear,
And life ran gaily as the sparkling Thames;
Before this strange disease of modern life,
With its sick hurry, its divided

Its heads o'ertax'd, its palsied hearts, was life—

Fly hence, our contact fear!
Still fly, plunge deeper in the

Our Lopsided Trade Balance

By LEWIS MILLIGAN

ONE of the arguments put forth in favor of a greater influx of immigrants was that, by increasing the population, it would provide a larger home market for Canadian products and thus offset our dependence upon export trade for the sale of our surplus. That was quite logical, and if we had kept our home market for ourselves all might have been well; but what happened?

Our home market is flooded with foreign-made goods of almost every description, except wheat and other farm products, which are costing us more to produce, subsidize and store away than they are worth for sale.

Is it any wonder that we have several hundred thousand unemployed? It is not owing to our lack of the "know-how" or the latest production equipment that these foreign goods are pouring into our home market and putting so many of our people out of work. Our exports consist chiefly of raw materials, which return to us in manufactured goods at prices with which our factories cannot compete.

"No nation was ever ruined by trade," said Benjamin Franklin. But the word "trade" implies a reciprocal interchange of goods or services on a fair competitive basis for both parties. The balance of trade may vary from time to time in favor of one side or the other; but a permanent one-sided trade is worse than no trade at all. No business can prosper or even carry on with a chronic debit balance.

The lopsided trade between Canada and the United States alone has handicapped Canadian industry, which has been able to carry on only by American investments which secure control of natural resources development and large industries.

Just as if that was not enough, our home market is invaded by German and Japanese products, which are depleting the sale of homemade goods, putting more Canadians out of work and exporting Canadian capital to those countries. British products are also being imported, but there is some reciprocity in that trade. We won the war against Germany and Japan, but in trade those two nations are winning the peace, so far as trade is concerned.

A teacher in a Toronto school of languages told me the other day that she had been tutoring a German woman, the wife of the manager of the Volkswagen company, in English. In the course of their conversation, the woman proudly said: "We have conquered the world with that car." And it would seem they have.

And the Japanese have certainly conquered the Canadian market in electrical appliances. Recently I was looking for a transistor radio and was shown a vest-pocket-sized set for $24.95. It was made in Japan. I was told it was their "best seller." Other sets were priced at $34.95. A few years ago I examined a small transistor set in Vancouver; it was priced at $79, plus a local sales tax. I turned it down and later bought a small battery set for $17, bearing the name, "Wales." I presumed it was made in Britain. When I had it repaired in Toronto, I was told it was made in Japan. The moral is obvious.

The Germans and Japanese have made a marvellous recovery from their losses in the war, and we should not be jealous of their success; but part if we desire to defend our industries from these foreign invasions it is not selfishness or spite on our part but our home market.

Reports from Ottawa

THE wood buffalo, discovered alive after 20 years in which scientists mourned it as extinct, will be set up in business again on land its ancestors roamed.

Government wildlife officials like Dr. W. E. Stevens are excitedly scouting the northwest for new buffalo range, determined not to muffle a second chance to save the wood bison.

The range must be large enough to support a good-sized herd; must be wild, unsettled country with no farms to complicate matters, and must be far enough from the herds of plains buffalo that there will be no interbreeding.

One possibility is the aspen parkland of northern Saskatchewan, where no buffalo have lived for 75 years. Another area Stevens has in mind is in the Northwest Territories, west of Great Slave Lake.

When the sites have been selected, the Wildlife Service intends to send a winter tractor-train expedition to the northwestern corner of Wood Buffalo National Park, where a herd of purebred wood bison has been found, and bring out enough young bulls and cows to start the new herd.

The wood buffalo, for size and weight the king of his species, would not have faced extinction if, 35 years ago, some Ottawa bureaucrats had remembered about the bees and the flowers.

The story starts in 1906, when Interior Minister Frank Oliver persuaded the Laurier cabinet to let him buy 250 head of plains buffalo for $200,000 from the Walking Coyote herd on the Flathead Indian reservation in Montana. Many Americans were furious when the deal went through, for this herd was the largest in the States. At the shipping point this resentment all but erupted into violence when the buffalo were loaded into cattle cars for the 1,200-

mile railway trip to Wainwright, Alta.

By 1925 the herd at Wainwright had so increased that the range there could not support it. But in northern Alberta the 17,300 square miles of Wood Buffalo National Park supported only a couple of thousand wood bison—the descendants of some 300 that were the last survivors of the subspecies when the government banned hunting them in 1891.

With ill-considered conservationist zeal, the government moved 6,673 plains buffalo into the park. The native wood buffalo were swamped by the influx. It is estimated that by 1940 there were no pure-blooded wood buffalo left—only plains bison and hybrids that today total about 16,000.

For years government zoologists hoped that maybe in some remote valley some of the wood bison had escaped the intermingling of genes—but none was ever found.

Then, in 1957, wildlife officers taking an aerial census of the park buffalo spotted some bison in a remote area where none had been reported before. Moreover, they were 75 miles from the nearest hybrid herd—and the terrain between was muskeg, a natural barrier that buffalo could cross only in winter, when the animals travel least.

With hope renewed, wildlife officer N. S. Novakowski of Port Smith led a party across the frozen muskeg early last year. They found a herd of 200 animals, shot five for study, and from the size and coloring of the beasts—30 per cent larger and much darker than the plains bison—Novakowski was almost certain he was witnessing a miracle. Back in Ottawa, caliper measurements of the skulls of the five specimens shot confirmed the miracle—the wood buffalo (Bison bison athabascæ Rhoads) still lives.

A Dog's Vices

By GREGORY CLARK

MOST dogs start their domestic careers with bad habits. It takes weeks and sometimes months to cure a puppy of its bad habits and teach it that it has to go outside to relieve itself and that, however cute it is for a time, it is not really acceptable to chew at the trouser cuffs, jump up on ladies' nyons and howl in the night.

Thus a dog's life starts out nurtured in patience and benevolence, and as a rule, the results are good. A devoted and sociable little animal is knit into the family and the home.

But now and then a dog's vices are accepted, through long and casual acquaintance, by its owners. And you get, at the age of four to six years, a surly dog, a mean dog, one that is a nuisance to everybody but its owners. Indeed, there are a few dog owners who are flattered by the fact that their dogs appear to dislike everyone but them.

But an ill-trained, ill-mannered dog is in fact a financial hazard and liability. Every now and then a court action brings this to light. One of these days a court decision for $10,000 or $100,000 damages will result in a great many worthless dogs being disposed of by thoughtless owners who can only be roused by the $ sign.

Through Other Eyes

(From "Industry")

WE are prone enough to berate ourselves concerning our various social habits (or should that be anti-social?) that it is perhaps not out of place to record once in a while the comments which visitors from afar make about us when they return home. In this connection the following letter which appeared recently in an English provincial newspaper is of some interest:

"Sir—I have just returned from a month's holiday in Canada. I travelled 1,500 miles by car. I visited Victoria, Ottawa, Niagara Falls, the Thousand Islands, and Kingston. I spent 10 days in Vancouver and two weeks in Toronto, visiting every part of these two cities. I did not see enough litter to fill one dust-bin.

"The fine for throwing trash on to the highways is $50 (near £20). Tables and benches are placed along the great roads at suitable spots for picnics, with the inevitable trash-can for rubbish. Rarely does one see a hedge or a wall before a house—just a well-kept lawn free from litter. Canadians are indeed litter-conscious.

Good to know someone gives us full marks for something.

U.S. Elections

Admirable Restraint

By MARQUIS CHILDS

WITH the temptation strong as it must be to shout, "Who lost Cuba to the Communists?" the Democrats have thus far in the U.S. election campaign shown admirable restraint. The contrast with 1952 is startling—when most Republicans from General Eisenhower and Richard Nixon on down were shouting, "Who lost China?" and the Jenners and the McCarthys were trumpeting, "Twenty years of treason."

It is, of course, early; and when the heat is turned up in the last weeks the conspicuous targets of Cuba and the other failures in the foreign field may prove irresistible. But the restraint shown so far is all on the plus side, if not for the Democrats certainly for the nation as a whole.

A minor exception is the effort of Senators James Eastland of Mississippi and Thomas J. Dodd of Connecticut, Democrats, to use the power of the Senate internal security subcommittee to level a McCarthyist type of attack at the State Department. They charged that certain unnamed officials in the department were responsible for Fidel Castro's coming to power. These allegations were based on the testimony of two political ambassadors who had qualified for the post in Havana by contributing generously to the Republican campaign chest.

A symptom of the changed times was the way in which this damp squib sputtered out. Secretary of State Herter said he was outraged at charges that were scarcely worthy of denial. With a little more frankness he might have added that the real cause for blame was in sending to a sensitive spot in the troubled Caribbean two fat-cat ambassadors who could not possibly be expected to understand the Batista dictatorship and the once-popular revolution that overthrew it.

But, the Eastland-Dodd alliance is not to be laughed off. They have made it their business to try to compel the Nobel Prize-winning scientist, Linus Pauling, to turn over to them the names of other scientists who helped circulate petitions calling for an end of nuclear testing. Pauling has taken the issue to the courts and will carry it to the Supreme Court itself.

As he is one of the most distinguished scientists in the world, his fellow scientists both here at home and elsewhere around the globe have begun to protest indignantly at what seems to them an effort to persecute him for his political views. If the courts, for legal reasons having little to do with the facts in the case, deny his request to enjoin the Internal Security Committee, Pauling is very likely to go to jail. This is an advertisement that can do far more harm to America in the uncommitted nations and even in Western Europe than all the Communist propaganda that Moscow can put out.

The question of suspension of nuclear tests with proper inspection and control is an enormously complicated one and, conceivably, Pauling in his fervent advocacy has gone too far. But conceivably, too, in making himself one of the principal propagandists for resuming testing, regardless of the determination of the Eisenhower administration to persist in exploring every possibility for an agreement, Dodd has also gone too far.

It is not that questions of foreign policy can be kept out of the campaign. Vice-President Nixon may be telling Americans just what they want to hear—that the United States is the biggest, the bravest, the boldest, the best in everything. But he can scarcely, being a realist himself, expect to silence Senator Kennedy by accusing him of peddling gloom and doom.

The voter is entitled to a discussion of the mistakes in foreign policy as seen by the opposition. And this on broad and general lines Kennedy is undertaking to do. That is not, as he insists, downgrading America. Presumably at a later date he will come up with the specifics on what he believes must be done to reverse the trend that he charges is running against this country.

But discussion is one thing and the wild Communist-baiting the Republicans indulged in eight years ago is quite another.

If under the Truman administration two trusted employees of the National Security Agency had escaped the country and defected publicly in Moscow, one can imagine the screams of outrage that would have gone up. Yet, so far as this reporter has observed, no highly-placed Democrat has taken up this cry over what in so huge a security-intelligence apparatus must be accounted a tragic and perhaps a stupid accident. It is a time for sobriety and maturity and, fortunately, the worst fevers of that other era seem to have subsided.

From the Scriptures

Let us worship and bow down—before the Lord our maker.—Psalm 95:6.

Blowing Off Steam

Your correspondent re "Keep the Park Quiet" (Sept. 20) seems not to understand the meaning of democracy when she objects to individuals giving voice to their opinions in a suggested "Hyde Park corner" in Beacon Hill Park.

One wonders if she has ever tried to get an opportunity to speak in public. For too many years it has been impossible for anyone of "the common herd" to speak at a meeting, etc., unless he is a member of some secret society (so-called fraternal society) or has a diploma (?) from Dale Carnegie or a "toastmaster's degree" or some equally ridiculous qualification.

When one has a grievance it is much better that he be allowed, even encouraged, to blow off, rather than to drive him underground to meet with other malcontents, then blow up and take many others up with him.

There are lots of places far away from the flowers quite suitable where "their raucous voices" would disturb no one and people would get the idea that one can make a speech (and be heard) without the aid of a loud speaker.

A Hyde Park corner in Beacon Hill Park is a capital idea, and I have an idea that I might be one of the first orators.

Canada's Flag

Isn't it about time we could solve the enigma (of a Canadian flag)?

I am no artist but can visualize preferably a plain flag with a maple leaf in the centre on a blue background; its possible adornments to consist of small cumulus clouds above and a lake or seascape below, so typical of a million scenes in Canada. There would be no mistaking its identity.

W. A. G. HOLLAND.

Stolen Name

Because of an allegation by Premier T. C. Douglas about the CCF being a democratic socialist movement, Lewis Milligan urges that "the proper name for the new alliance should therefore be the Socialist Party" (Colonist, Sept. 17).

To relieve Mr. Milligan of his confusion it should be pointed out that the Socialist Party of Canada, while small, has no intention of allowing itself to be corrupted by having any dealings with the reformist CCF or giving carte blanche for membership from the CLC, which can boast every political color imaginable. There is only one way to become a member of the Socialist Party of Canada—that is to be a socialist, i.e., to understand and want socialism. In my experience I have yet to meet a CCFer that meets this qualification.

If the "New Party" confusionists think that through strength of numbers they could steal our name they should take note of the trouble in which the old Winch gang found themselves when they tried this stunt back in the 30s.

Shipmates Help Sailor in Distress

Confidence expressed by his shipmates in Roy Wells, HMCS New Glasgow, won him a measure of easement in city court yesterday.

Charged with entering a dwelling place with intent to commit an indictable offence, he had pleaded not guilty earlier, when bail was set at $1,000. Trial was set for yesterday, but defence counsel James Proudfoot won an adjournment to get certain witnesses.

He also requested a reduction in the bail, saying Wells' shipmates had pooled their resources to raise $750 for that purpose.

Magistrate Ostler consented, and set bail at $700.

Brooke Stephenson, 2634 Currie, was sentenced in Oak Bay court to 14 days in jail following his second conviction on a charge of impaired driving. He was charged after being involved in an accident.

In Colwood court, Brian David Grieve, 1515 Derby, was fined $25 after pleading guilty to a charge, laid under the Game Act, of having a loaded firearm in his car.

Second jail sentence in as many days was handed down in city court to Steve Remington, no fixed address, after he pleaded guilty to theft of a $39.95 transistor radio.

Remington and Donald William Thompson were sentenced Thursday to 15 months each for theft of another radio in Saanich. Yesterday, Remington was sentenced to 18 months concurrent—for taking a radio from Atkinson & Pearce Appliances Ltd., 2652 Quadra.

Leaper Left Death Poem

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 17-year-old girl spent more than an hour writing poetry and farewell notes Thursday before jumping to her death from the Lions Gate bridge here.

Police said she apparently sat in an alcove at one end of the bridge, writing messages and a poem about her suicide. They were found in her purse, left behind when she jumped at the peak of rush-hour traffic.

Voters Lost Rights?

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two CCF provincial election candidates say they fear hundreds of voters were turned away in Vancouver Burrard constituency because of a ruling of a returning officer.

C. P. Neale and Fred Vulliamy wrote to Fred Hurley, chief electoral officer, that they vigorously protested the alleged refusal of returning officer James Wardrop to allow low votes under section 80 of the Elections Act.

The voters had stated they had voted in the last election and had not moved since then and their name should be on the voters list or that they had been enumerated but had been left off the voters' list.

They said "Mr. Wardrop stated he 'did this' because it was too much trouble to issue special ballots."

Pupil's Mouth Taped Shut In Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — The school board said Friday it has reprimanded two teachers involved in taping a 10-year-old student's mouth shut for one hour.

A spokesman said the woman teacher who put the tape on the mouth of Johnny Pealey, a grade 5 student, and another teacher who left it on were warned they would be dismissed if it happened again.

The boy's stepfather, Herbert Wellings, protested that the teachers should have been dismissed or suspended.

The spokesman said the boy's mouth was taped shut because he asked a question during a work period and she wanted to teach the whole class a lesson.

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker indicated yesterday he may make cabinet appointments next week.

"I would think there would be some announcements about the cabinet next week," he said, following a cabinet meeting.

However, he declined to indicate if the announcements will be confined to filling three vacant cabinet portfolios—veterans affairs, secretary of state and forestry—or existing portfolios will be shuffled.

Mr. Diefenbaker also said he will fill a vacancy on the Board of Broadcast Governors shortly and will appoint a lieutenant-governor of B.C. before the Oct. 3 anniversary of the appointment of the present lieutenant-governor, Hon. Frank Ross.

He sidestepped questions based on recent speculation that Defence Minister Peakes, 72, will step down to take the

to make a transistor tick

The 61 indium spheres pictured above could sit on the head of a pin! Each is a tiny transistor component 83/10,000 of an inch in diameter. The customers we make them for demand accuracy — no spheres smaller than 80/10,000 of an inch and none larger than 85/10,000. All spheres must be perfectly round and have a purity of 99.999% indium.

Such a program is typical of many now in hand in Cominco's research laboratories at Trail, British Columbia. Here you will find projects designed to keep the purity of TADANAC Brand metals and the quality of Elephant Brand chemical fertilizers up with the best in the market, projects to explore new uses for our metals and chemicals, projects that delve into other fields and look far into the future.

Cominco research presents a balanced program for progress and growth.

WINNIPEG (CP) — An 18-year-old Winnipeg girl away from home for the first time Wednesday amazed the New York City police department by tracking down her stolen violin without police help, the girl's mother said yesterday.

The girl, Pat Patts, who will be 19 Tuesday, is studying the violin at the Juilliard School of Music in New York.

STUFFING WEINERS

She arrived for her studies three weeks ago with her $600 violin and $1,200 she had saved by working as a drive-in carhop and in packing plants stuffing weiners.

Monday, her record player, jewelry and her violin, were stolen from her apartment.

PAWN SHOPS

Armed with a New York City street directory and helped by two fellow students, Pat began going from one pawn shop to the other.

For two days, starting early in the morning and ending late at night, the three friends trudged the streets from pawn shop to pawn shop. Wednesday night they located it in a Harlem pawn shop. The $600 instrument had been sold for $12.

The cataraacts at Niagara Falls are an estimated 100,000 years old.

Fathers to Blame For Delinquency Says Churchman

NEW WESTMINSTER — A United Church minister blames fathers for juvenile delinquency.

Dr. R. S. Hooking, chairman of the church's commission on marriage and divorce, says, "It's not the length of time a mother spends with her child that's important, but the quality of the time. The real offender in Canada is not the mother but the father."

"He has delegated his authority to the mother when he should be spending more time with his children."

VANCOUVER — James Hoffa, president of the Teamsters' Union, will be guest speaker Thursday at a rally of B.C. members of his union in the 3,000-seat exhibition gardens.

NEW WESTMINSTER — Warden Thomas Hall of the B.C. Penitentiary whose wallet and keys were stolen from a counter in a downtown bank, said: "I think I'd have probably got the wallet back if I'd left it lying around in the penitentiary."

Castro Party Raided

NEW YORK (CP) — Police confiscated two knives and a gun from among 250 persons attending a party Thursday night for Cuban Prime Minister Castro at his Harlem hotel.

Repercussions continued from the slaying of a Venezuelan child, caught in a battle between rival Cuban groups in a restaurant.

At the Hotel Theresa, detectives found the weapons after they frisked persons entering the 11th-floor skylight room. The gun was carried by one of Castro's guards. Police photos were taken of all guests.

Castro denounced as "lies" newspaper accounts of how nine-year-old Magdalena Urdaneta was fatally wounded Wednesday.

Shutter Shows Who Won In Close Sandown Racing

Space satellites seem to have found their place in the modern age, but horse players have their own favorite gadget that looks down from above—the eye-in-the-sky camera, and it's been working very well for a number of years, thank you.

The eye-in-the-sky was the focal point of plenty of attention yesterday at Sandown Park, fourth day of the current 14-day meeting.

After clearly showing to judges which horse won the first, third and fourth races, the infallible lens picked out the second-place horse in the gathering gloom that surrounded the finish of the seventh race and satisfied several hundred quinnella bettors.

CLOSE RACING

The over-worked shutter pointed out the fact that racing was extremely well-contested yesterday. Betting was down slightly over the same day last year but the fans certainly got a run for their money.

In the first race, Whirl Glory caught Campmaster in the stretch and the camera caught Whirl Glory doing it, so those who made Whirl Glory an odds-on favorite got their money back—but just. It paid $2.90 to win—smallest win price of the meet so far.

Keats Island came from off the pace to win the second race quite handsomely, and Pacific Rose was well placed, to combine for a modest $9.40 quinnella.

Third race produced some bouncing around on the turns and Panjandrum, while pushed out, went the overland route to win in a photo over the hard-charging Junior's Comet that had its own share of bad racing luck.

Convertible showed how easy it was to convert $2 into $20 but again it took the camera to prove it as Sweet Fighter came just a nose short at the finish of the fourth race.

Vihar's Boy won the first race in a duel with Lady J. and Dark Turris, a Prairie invader making its first start here, won the feature Port Alberni purse in the sixth race.

MAKES MOVE
Under a skillful ride by jockey Bobby Cormack, Dark Turris was taken off the pace, made his move in the backstretch and outlasted the game Silver Leaves and Baraloy.

Pro Tick won the last heat by four lengths but it was a close thing for second with Sir Jungle, Manner's Sun and Hendelale all seemingly at the wire at once. But the camera picked out Sir Jungle and the resulting payoff for the one-two bettors was $12.60.

Times were about a second off but the track should be in good condition for today's eight-race card—a particularly good one for Sandown.

Feature race is the Premier's Handicap, a mile gallop for an $800 purse.

Some Just Can't Wait

Hanging limply and just waiting to fly is pennant hung up yesterday over Allegheny County court house in Pittsburgh, home of the Pirates who almost nailed down National League flag but didn't. St. Louis kept faint hope alive by winning doubleheader while Bucs lost to Milwaukee.

Hold It, You Pirate Fans

Champagne bottles are at the ready in Pittsburgh, but thirsty Pirate fans had to hold off their pennant party last night.

St. Louis Cardinals, still holding a slim mathematical chance for the National League pennant, knocked off Chicago Cubs twice, 5-1 and 5-1, yesterday, and Milwaukee Braves, playing better than they did when they had a chance, nipped the Pirates, 2-1.

That leaves Pirates six games ahead of St. Louis, and the magic number is still two. If the Pirates beat Milwaukee today and, St. Louis loses to the Cubs, Pittsburgh faithful can break out the brew and celebrate their first pennant in 33 years.

In the American League, New York Yankees reduced their magic number to four, beating Boston Red Sox, 5-1, while second-place Chicago was blanking Cleveland, 7-0, on Early Wynn's 13th victory.

Pirates arrived in Milwaukee sporting a six-game winning streak and hopeful of nailing down the pennant against the team they had beaten 11 times in 16 tries this season. But Bob Buhl put a crimp in their plans with a five-hitter.

Billy Bruton put Milwaukee out in front in the third inning with his 12th homer. Bill Virdon doubled in the tying run in the fifth, but the Braves single by Roger Maris as they moved closer to handing Casey Stengel his 10th pennant in 12 years.

Bob Turley got credit for his ninth victory, and had a three-hitter going after seven innings. Only run off him was unearned, and came in the sixth on Pete Runnel's single, an error by Lopez, and a double by Ted Williams.

Ted Kluszewski hit his fifth homer and a two-run single for the White Sox and Minnie Minoza drove in two runs with a pair of doubles. Minoza was thrown out of the game in the eighth inning for flinging a bat at pitcher Frank Funk after a dust-off pitch. Rookie Stan Johnson took over at the plate and hit his first home run.

It was the 46th shutout for Wynn.

Baltimore's sagging Orioles took their sixth defeat in seven games, 4-0, from Washington Senators. Chuck Stobbs tossed a five-hitter for his first complete game since Sept. 5, 1957—when he beat the Birds, 3-0.

Nanaimo Welcome Dampened

Jet Engine Trouble Delays Homecoming

NANAIMO—One faulty aircraft engine has affected the lives of thousands of Nanaimo residents. The jet aircraft carrying the Nanaimo lacrosse team home from Ontario Friday developed engine trouble and had to turn back to Toronto, delaying their arrival in Nanaimo by eight hours and forcing the cancellation of a huge welcome that had been arranged.

The western Canadian senior lacrosse champions were defeated in their bid for the Mann Cup this-week, but citizens in the greater Nanaimo area had planned an official reception at the dock, a parade through the downtown area and a special public banquet honoring the team.

The plane was not to have arrived until too late to get the team home until early this morning, so the reception and parade were cancelled completely, but the city made arrangements for the banquet to be held this evening at 6.30.

It is expected that between three and four hundred people will attend the function.

Cards Shock Rams In NFL Lid-Lifter

LOS ANGELES (CP)— Reserve quarterback John Roach fired four touchdown passes in the second half as St. Louis Cardinals exploded for 33 points Friday night and rolled to a 43-21 victory over Los Angeles Rams here in the opening game of the 1960 National Football League season.

Roach, formerly of Southern Methodist, now is in his third year of professional football. He threw touchdown passes to John Crow for 52 yards, and three to Sonny Randle for 57, 37 and 24 yard.

It was the third-year in a row the Rams lost their season opener.

Blocked Kick Turns Trick For Titans

NEW YORK (AP)—Roger Donahoe, a 22-year-old defensive halfback, scooped up a blocked punt with just 16 seconds to go, scooted 10 yards over the goal and enabled the New York Titans to defeat the Denver Broncos, 28-24, Friday night in an American Football League game.

In the other AFL contest, Buffalo Bills defeated Boston, 13-0, at Boston. Buffalo struck with a 58-yard touchdown pass by Tommy O'Connell on the third play, then left it up to the defence to complete the upset.

Victoria Mentioned As PCL Franchise If Solons Collapse

By JIM TAYLOR

Victoria may have a team in the Pacific Coast Baseball League within a season or two.

At least, that is the theory of league president Dewey Soriano, and the man sounded quite serious about it last night in a telephone interview from his home in Seattle. So serious, in fact, that he is coming here to look the situation over in the near future.

Soriano stated at the PCL meeting Thursday in Portland that Victoria, Edmonton and Honolulu were all being considered as possible new homes for the Sacramento franchise. If the Solons can't get off the financial rocks. He was also quoted as saying Victoria had a potential baseball audience of 200,000.

"Are you kidding?" he was asked last night. "I certainly am not," he replied. "Victoria could be a very good potential PCL franchise. I don't know about the Sacramento franchise, but there is going to be expansion soon, and you have 175,000 people within a 30 mile radius."

"I was there when you had a team in the Western International League and it was a good baseball town," he added. "Of course, you'd need a new ball park, because the one there just isn't suitable."

Has anyone here contacted him about a PCL franchise? "I'm not at liberty to say right now," Soriano replied, strongly indicating that someone had.

SIDESTEPPE

He also sidestepped the question of just where the money was going to come from for that new ball park; now Victoria rated compared to Edmonton as a future PCL site, and the matter of just how shaky the Sacramento franchise is at the moment.

There are reportedly several shaky franchises in the league, but Sacramento is undoubtedly the worst-off, with a losing season behind them and a probable increase from $30,000 to $45,000 in stadium rent.

SOME OBSTACLES

However, even if the Solons fold and Honolulu and Edmonton say "No thank you," Victoria could hardly be considered "in." There are a few thousand obstacles, and each one of them is a baseball fan. In Victoria, baseball fans have a great reputation for staying home. Consider:

Portland Beavers drew the smallest crowds in the PCL this season, but finished with 116,130 fans at home. In 1954, when Victoria folded its WIL franchise, the Tyees were averaging less than 700 per game. Assuming a ball park and a franchise, Soriano and Co. still have to find the fans and make them come out. It figures to be a tough chore.

TURNUED COLD

Tyees operated in the WIL for almost nine seasons, and for the first three it seemed the city was a baseball hotbed. Attendance figures from 1946-48 read 103,000, 137,000 and 148,000. In the next five years Victoria changed from the hotbed to the deathbed of professional baseball.

Each season was a losing one. In 1949 attendance dropped to 115,000. The following year it was 110,000, then 87,000, then 89,000, and then 56,000 in 1953, when it took a city-wide shares sale and financial help to keep going.

LAST GASP

On Aug. 5, 1954, when the Tyees played their final game before folding, there were 327 fans in Royal Athletic Park. That year the club lost about $40,000 and drew a total of 28,000 fans to 46 home games. Figures for those first three years shows that, as Soriano says, the potential is here. But in a town where a good senior amateur league drew less than 100 fans per game this season, there is a long way to go to climb to triple "A" baseball.

CALGARY (CP)—Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League took a 6-4 victory over Calgary Stampedeers Friday night to remain undefeated in their exhibition tour of Western Canada.

A crowd of 5,840 saw the Western Hockey League club tie the score three times in the first period before Detroit pulled ahead to stay in the second period.

Left winger Val Fonteyne and centre Murray Oliver each scored twice for Detroit. Gordie Howe and Norm Ullman scored one each.

Calgary's Lou Jankowski tallied twice. Jerry Esch and Cliff Bristow scored the other Stampede goals.

Instead, the rocket changes

President Eisenhower pre-

He is suggesting all countries would rest more easily if space launchings by any state were certified as to their true purpose by international inspection teams at the launching site, whether in the United States, the Soviet Union or other countries.

The nubbin of his argument is mutual distrust concerning potentials for peace or war in space, as in other areas of international life.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker of Canada has repeatedly called for immediate action by East and West to guarantee that space vehicles be launched for peaceful purposes only.

Canada is a member of the UN outer space committee.

Some scientists hold that establishment of a base on the moon can give a country control over other countries.

One way would be by launching nuclear warheads with great precision down upon an other country from the moon.

From the moon, one country could keep a potential enemy under constant surveillance.

For ultimate exploration of other planets in the solar system, one suggestion is that space platforms first be established in orbit no more than 1,000 miles above the earth.

Space ships taking off from a platform would need far less fuel for takeoff—the earth's gravity would be largely overcome there—to travel the vast distance to Mars and back. But the same rocket presumably could be used as a nuclear weapon directed against a pinpointed target on earth.

Geneva talks concerning underground testing of A-bombs or H-bombs have split over the issue of inspections and controls. Scientists, at least on the American side, stress possible ways of making tests without detection. This could pose difficulties for another nation to detect what was really happening.

Recognition Urged

EDMONTON (CP)—The possibility of entering into world policy talks with leaders of Communist China will be explored by the United Church of Canada.

The move was approved
Thursday night as general council, the church's policy-making body, again urged Canada to recognize the government of Red China. "This is the first time it will take steps to approach the country's leaders on the subject.

MEETINGS END

The world's increasing population also was discussed as the 19th general council ended nine days of meetings.

Approval was given to a resolution which asked the Canadian government to provide information on birth control to countries requesting it.

About 375 commissioners delegates attended general council, held every two years.

The 20th general council will meet in London, Ont. in the ## Population Explosion Debated

meanwhile, the church will study a suggestion that general council meet yearly.

The resolution dealing with Communist Chinese talks was introduced by Rev. E. J.

Thompson, principal of St.
Stephen's Theological College in Edmonton.

"There are only two ways of dealing with an enemy," he said, "Either destroy him or transform him into a friend.

You can't transform him into a friend without communicat-

STANDING MASS

Rev. E. M. Howse of Toronto said every foot of dry land in the world will be covered by a standing mass of people in 1,000 years at the present rate of birth.

He said the population explosion is the most neglected social problem. Unfortunately the problem has come up before the world is intelligent enough to meet it, said a report approved by general council.

ENORMOUS AREA

"The tremendous scope of the problem comes from the enormous area of illiteracy where modern medical, agricultural and engineering techniques change the rate of death but the women... have their offspring every year," the report said.

Dealing with the other business, council asked the federal government to re-assess Canada's defence role, to establish a national health insurance plan and to call a fall session of Parliament to deal with unemployment.

Actual day of the consecration was Sept. 28, eve of the Feast of St. Michael and All Angels. The building was consecrated as "The Cathedral Church of Christ in Victoria."

Achbishop Harold Sexton will be celebrant for a Sung Eucharist at 11 a.m. There will be Holy Communion at 8 a.m.

For that matter he is home very little. Pollsters estimate that the average minister spend 25 hours weekly with his family. Ministers' sons are falsely said to go to the devil, but they would if it dependent on the father.

Due to Mothers

It has been frequently pointed out that the clergy produces more distinguished children than any other class in the community. This is due entirely to their mothers.

Their fathers are so overwhelmed with administrative that the announcement, "It's a boy!" only brings the response, "Ask him what he wants."

Though she entertains about 500 people a year in her home, the life of a minister's wife is lonely. Close friends create jealousy.

She lives in a glass house.
Her make-up, clothes, habits, and hobbies provoke criticism.
Her family and housekeeping must be exemplary.

Often a Nightmare

The problem of completely furnishing a house when starting off in marriage is often a nightmare. It can't be done gradually. Most congregations now supply a stove, refrigerator, and washing machine. (This reduces moving expenses when getting a new minister.)

Some churches furnish the house entirely. This causes embarrassment when new furniture is needed, leaves the woman little choice, means scrutiny by a committee, and puts the house more in de-

Khrushchev Slams the Door on Ike's Peace Offering

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Soviet Premier Khrushchev apparently has slammed the door on President Eisenhower's peace offering.

Instead of seeking conciliation through acceptance of some of the less contentious proposals Eisenhower made, Khrushchev in his speech to the United Nations General Assembly virtually accused Eisenhower of following policies that could provoke a third world war.

The Soviet leader's disarmament suggestions were mainly a rehash of old proposals which the West rejected as unrealistic on the ground Khrushchev could not be tied down to secure step-by-step inspection and control measures.

One of his first-stage disarmament proposals—to halt within 18 months production of the means of delivering atom bombs—would seem to hold more appeal for France than the U.S. Khrushchev thus may figure he can stir up trouble between these allies.

France is in the early stages of nuclear bomb production. Her favorite disarmament target is halting production of rockets and planes, the means of delivering nuclear weapons. U.S. experts say this is because France hasn't yet attained a nuclear rocket or plane fleet.

Eisenhower favors a start in halting production of fissionable military materials. Both Russia and the U.S. have big stockpiles of these; France hasn't.

Political overtones also may be contained in Khrushchev's suggestion that the East-West 10-power disarmament commission, which seemed to be coming to grips with the problem when Russia walked out, now must be replaced by a new body in which neutral countries are to have membership.

Diplomats here are already asking why, if Khrushchev thought it so important that neutrals be included, didn't he propose this in the first place? They conclude that his proposal is no more than a political gimmick to arouse friendship among the neutrals.

But perhaps most depressing of all for the West is Khrushchev's attempt to dethrone Dag Hammarskjöld, the UN secretary general.

Hammarskjöld's work has brought him acclaim from many parts of the world, but it has aroused Khrushchev's anger. He wants to replace the secretary-general with a three-man executive drawn from East and West and the neutral bloc.

This could, in fact, paralyze the UN. Instead of fast decisions, as became necessary in the Congo, the executive may haggle over conflicting proposals and never reach complete agreement. This may be exactly what Khrushchev would like.

Fiery Khrushchev Tells Assembly:

Ditch Dag and Move UN End World Colonialism

Would Welcome Thaw Red Premier Hints

PARIS (Reuters)—Michel Gorday, correspondent at the United Nations for the Paris newspaper France-Soir, reported yesterday that Soviet Premier Khrushchev hinted to him he would be open to any attempt by another statesman to mediate the coldness between himself and President Eisenhower.

"If someone took such a bold initiative—I like bold people—he would certainly find a response on my part," Khrushchev said.

Vote Forecast

Red China Issue Today

WASHINGTON (UPI)—U.S. officials believe the UN will reject Communist China's bid for membership by only a slightly closer margin than last year's 15 votes when the question is again raised today in the powerful steering committee.

The United States is again proposing to shelve the China membership issue for another year.

COMMITTEE VOTE
The same proposal won last September in the UN political committee by a vote of 44 to 23, with nine abstentions.

Cuba, one of last year's abettors, is sure to shift to Red China's support. Laos, with a new, neutralist government, may switch from opposition to either support of the Peking bid or abstention.

NONE EXPECTED
No other changes among last year's members are expected.

Of the 13 new African members, at least four were known to be leaning toward support of Nationalist China and four or five to the Reds. Several others have indicated they were not ready to take a stand and would abstain.

UN Reply Monday

Diefenbaker Prepares West's First Answer

OTTAWA (UPI)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker worked long and hard yesterday on the West's first major reply to Nikita Khrushchev's sweeping attack on the UN administration.

Informants indicated its content, to be laid before the General Assembly Monday, will mix a sharply-worded rebuttal to Khrushchev's speech with a series of more positive points emphasizing the need to resume the dismantled Geneva disarmament talks, possibly under a neutral chairman.

Diefenbaker, said to consider the speech the most important of his career, stopped his writing twice to consult with his fellow cabinet ministers and several times with senior advisers.

He will likely renew Canada's offer to open its Arctic regions on a reciprocal basis for international inspection against surprise attack.

The prime minister will fly to New York some time today.

Waiting for Castro

Nikita Deserts Balcony For Street-Level Wit

NEW YORK (UPI)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev came down from his balcony yesterday and granted a man-in-the-street interview.

Khrushchev made a grumpy morning appearance on the balcony of the Soviet embassy on Park Avenue where he has been holding forth periodically for several days.

Last night, he appeared on the front steps while waiting for Cuban Premier Fidel Castro to arrive for dinner.

Asked why he was standing there, the Kremlin wit said, "well, we'll have some air, if not quite fresh."

A reporter asked him when he planned to go home to Moscow.

"I like staying here," he said, "so I am not going."

He added that although he wanted to stay in America, he doubted he could become a citizen.

After he had waited a few minutes for his tardy dinner guest, he was asked if he felt like a bride waiting at the church.

"I was never in the condition of a bride," he said.

Khrushchev said he had not yet read U.S. Secretary of State Herter's comment on his United Nations speech, but commented, "some statements are wise, and some are otherwise."

Asked to explain, he said, "What is your head for—a hat or to think?"

Was Castro going to visit the Kremlin? "I will be very glad if he comes," Khrushchev replied.

"When?" he was asked.

A Republican campaign truck carrying a model of a rocket passed and Khrushchev pretended to cringe.

The legend on the rocket said, "Nixon in, Khrushchev out."

New 'Star'

Smiling President Nasser of United Arab Republic flew in Friday to swell the star-studded ranks of foreign heads of state at UN meeting. Earlier, during refueling stop at Gander, N.B., Nasser received message of greetings from Governor-General Vanier.

Ike to Meet Nasser Mac, Nehru

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Eisenhower announced yesterday that he will talk with three more heads of government next week.

On Monday the president will meet in New York with President Gamal Nasser of the United Arab Republic and India's Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru. He will see British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan there on Tuesday.

Both Nehru and Macmillan are due to arrive in New York Sunday.

Nikita Knows Horse Laugh

NEW YORK (UPI)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev knows a horse laugh when he hears one.

He was standing on the front stoop of the Russian embassy on Park Avenue last night waiting for his honored guest, Cuban Premier Castro, when he heard a policeman's horse whinny.

"The American horses are greeting the Soviet Union," he said.

Backs Patrice Lumumba In Congolese Question

By HENRY SHAPIRO

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev said yesterday the United Nations should be reorganized along communist lines and moved to another country, perhaps Russia.

Khrushchev, stung by what he admitted was a western victory in the Congo, demanded that UN secretary-general Dag Hammarskjöld be fired and his post Sovietized with a Communist-style presidium.

In an arm-waving two-hour and 19-minute speech before the UN general assembly "summit meeting," he called for immediate abolition of all colonialism around the globe.

Khrushchev also urged global disarmament and renewed his warnings of the danger of war in flights of U.S. planes near the Iron Curtain. He referred specifically to the U-2 and RB-47 incidents and added:

"The continuation of such actions and especially their interpretation by the U.S. president as a state policy can at any moment plunge mankind into a third world war."

Khrushchev was applauded four times during his speech, the most energetic yet given by any chief of state at the general assembly. It was in sharp contrast to President Eisenhower's quiet, measured 42-minute "state of the world" message yesterday, which was not interrupted once by applause.

Complete Rewriting

Khrushchev started his criticism of the United Nations with an attack on Hammarskjöld and his peace-making efforts in the Congo. Then he called for a complete rewriting of the UN charter to replace the secretary general with a communist-style presidium on which the Soviet Union would have a veto, just as it does in the Security Council.

"... there exist other inconveniences as well which the UN members are now experiencing," he said. "These inconveniences are caused by the location of the UN organization."

Insure Their Security

"The representatives of the U.S. authorities explain the various restrictions of the rights of representatives of states in the United Nations by the fact that it is difficult for them to insure their security. I wish to emphasize that we are of a better opinion of the hospitality of the American people than the one that may result from such statements and restrictions."

"The question arises of whether or not thought should be given to the choice of another locale for the UN headquarters which would better facilitate this international organization. Switzerland or Austria might well be such a place, for example."

"I can declare in all responsibility that if it should be considered expedient to house the UN headquarters in the Soviet Union, we guaranteed the best possible conditions for its work, complete freedom and security for all representatives of all states irrespective of their political or religious convictions and of the color of their skin."

Gulp from Glass

The premier talked about 20 minutes before pausing to gulp water from a glass and then ostentatiously refill it.

"This is excellent Soviet water I am drinking here," he said. "I recommend it to all if you haven't tried it."

He apparently had brought his own bottle from Moscow.

Khrushchev said there was nothing new in Eisenhower's speech and then proceeded to offer a rehash of his own plans for immediate and total disarmament and the freeing of all colonial peoples in the world.

He was angered at the Soviet

Actual Situation

"The executive body of the United Nations should reflect the actual situation that obtains in the world today. The United Nations includes parties to the military blocs of the Western powers, socialist states and neutralist countries."

"This would therefore be completely justified, and we would be guaranteed to a greater extent against the negative developments which came to light in the work of the United Nations, especially during recent events in the Congo."

Khrushchev in essence laid down a three-point program of demands on the world parliament:

—Disarmament: On this he presented a rehash of his old "total disarmament" program and called for abolition of foreign military bases within 18 months. The program renewed his demand that means of delivering nuclear weapons—rockets, bombers, submarines, etc.—be abolished.

—Elimination of colonialism throughout the world.

—Aggressive U.S. actions: This included the U-2 spy plane incident and the RB-47 reconnaissance bomber the Russians claim was shot down over Soviet territory and which the Americans say was shot down over the open sea.

Bitter Opposition

Hungarian Revolt Goes on Agenda As Russia Loses

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—The Russians yesterday failed in their attempt to keep their actions in Hungary out of UN debate.

The General Assembly's steering committee, meeting hours after Premier Khrushchev's attack on the UN structure, approved a new and full debate on the question of Hungary and the Soviet suppression of the 1956 Hungarian revolution.

The United States had proposed taking up the Hungarian question. But the West faced bitter Communist opposition in the steering committee before winning the vote on the question, 124, with four abstentions.

Soviet deputy foreign minister Valerian Zorin denounced the United States and charged it "is not being motivated by any special love for the Hungarian people..." The United States is coming forward as fighters against any nationalist system, being disguised as alleged lovers of freedom."

The United States also won a point from the Russians in the admission of the U.S. RB-47 plane incident to the agenda. The Russians claim the plane was shot down over Soviet territory.

U.S. ambassador James Wadsworth, declaring his government has "nothing to fear from these charges," nevertheless insisted on changing the title of the item to avoid prejudging the issue.

Originally entitled by the Russians "the menace to world peace created by aggressive actions of the United States of America," it was changed by Wadsworth to begin with the words "complaint of."

"It is expedient to renounce the system under which all the practical work in the period between General Assembly sessions and Security Council meetings is determined by the secretary-general alone."

Pearson Sees UN

'Clown' Likes Turmoil, Boos

TORONTO (UPI)—Liberal leader Lester Pearson yesterday branded Nikita Khrushchev a "clown" and praised President Eisenhower's UN approach.

On his return from New York, he said a baseball game on television there "interested me more" than Khrushchev. He soon switched over to a John Kennedy campaign speech, then to Khrushchev.

Referring to Khrushchev as "a clown," he said he felt the Soviet leader was "delighted" to be confined to Manhattan Island.

To the turmoil and the boos, "he apparently had no desire to dampen it down. I would say that he was reveling in this kind of treatment. It gave him an excellent chance to get into the headlines."

In a more serious vein, Pearson felt Khrushchev's appearance was not good for the routine operation of the UN, but "it is all to the good if he's there to present constructive proposals."

It was his opinion, Pearson said, that the Russian premier "was bestirring the UN like a colossus" to demonstrate his power to Communist China.

He praised President Eisenhower's approach as "moderate, sensible and civilized."

Nkrumah:

Giant Africa Veto

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana asked the UN yesterday to set up a Monroe doctrine for Africa and make it out of bounds to the "suicidal" East-West cold war.

Nkrumah also told the General Assembly the UN Congo command should be changed "forthwith" for an all-African one that will support deposed Premier Lumumba.

VETO POWER

His address, which demanded a permanent veto-power seat for Africa in the Security Council, UN recognition of Communist China and creation of a nuclear free zone on the Dark Continent, won a thunderous ovation, especially from the Communists.

Now emerging as Africa's left-wing leader, Nkrumah said flatly that he, whose people had once "languished in the chains of slavery and humiliation," had come "to proclaim to the world a dawn of a new era."

DRIVEN OUT

He pictured this new era as one in which all foreign powers would be driven from Africa, foreign military bases eliminated and Africans left to settle their own problems and have an equal voice through the UN in the affairs of the world.

Every Word from Ike Published by Izvestia

MOSCOW (CP)—President Eisenhower's 4,500-word speech to the United Nations General Assembly Thursday was carried in full in the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia Friday night.

Khrushchev Aims

'Wrecking the UN, Inciting Rebellion' Declares Herter

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—U.S. Secretary of State Herter yesterday charged Soviet Premier Khrushchev with trying to wreck the UN and incite rebellion in all remaining colonial areas.

Herter called Ghana President Nkrumah a member of the Communist bloc and said he seemed to be making a bid for leadership of a left-wing group of African states.

The secretary bitterly castigated Khrushchev for his attacks on Dag Hammarskjöld and said the U.S. had tried at once to find some way to introduce a motion for a vote of confidence in the secretary general. This, however, was impossible under the rules of procedure.

Herter's denunciation of Soviet tactics was made shortly after Khrushchev had finished his harangue to the General Assembly.

Herter then read a letter permitting the U.S. to give $5,000,000 at once and more later for emergency aid in the Congo.

The letter was an expression of U.S. confidence in Hammarskjöld.

Herter said he could not analyze the entire Khrushchev speech but his quick reaction fell into two parts:

● It was "an all-out attack, a real declaration of war against the structure, personnel and location of the United Nations."

MELBOURNE, Australia (UPI)—Prime Minister Menzies last night accused Soviet Premier Khrushchev of "barnstorming to the United Nations" after trying to buy his way into the Congo with domination as the price.

Menzies said: "I will never understand how anybody who loves peace and wishes to see a true summit meeting seriously and responsibly conducted could fall for the present bullying tactics" of Khrushchev's propaganda machine which he called "the most superbly organized piece of hypocrisy the world has yet seen."

How to Force Bulbs

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

In yesterday's column I listed the names of some bulbs suitable for forcing in bulb bowls to provide winter flowers indoors. Today I think we might kick around the method used to grow these bulbs.

Many of the bowls I see offered for this purpose are much too shallow for good root development. They should be at least three inches deep and with reasonably straight sides—shallow sloping sides are just a waste of space and bulb fibre.

Bulb fibre was at one time made from coconut fibre; nowadays it is usually a mixture of peat moss, oyster shell and charcoal. If you mix your own, use the flake or small lump charcoal rather than the powdered kind. The fibre must be moistened very thoroughly before use and the best way is to place a suitable quantity in a bucket, add water and knead and squeeze it until it has absorbed as much water as it can hold, then wring out each handful as you pack it in the bulb bowls.

To fill the bowls, place enough fibre in each to form a base on which to rest the bulbs with their noses

just sticking up above the level of the rim. Leave the fibre loose and uncompressed under the bulbs and sit the bulbs on it without pushing them down into it. Now add more fibre until the bulbs are almost covered except for their noses. The top surface of the fibre should be at least half an inch below the bowl rim to allow for easy watering. The last layers of fibre to go in can be firmed with the fingers, particularly between the edge of the bowl and the outer row of bulbs.

The idea here is to have the fibre rather loose down under the bulbs but firm and compressed on top. This is because the bulb roots exert quite a pressure if they encounter a firm obstacle and tend to push the bulbs up out of the fibre.

Plant the bulbs as closely as you like, providing they don't actually touch one another, for this would make the firming of the top layer of fibre rather difficult. After planting, water carefully, then stand the bowls on their sides for a few minutes to allow any surplus water to drain away. Watering is always a tricky business in containers without drainage holes; the fibre must be constantly moist but never soggy wet.

The next step—cool storage—is critically important, for the whole success of your planting depends on this. When a bulb is growing naturally, outdoors in winter, it is cold and in the dark and under such conditions it makes no top growth at all until it has produced all the roots it requires. To force our bulbs successfully, we must try to reproduce this state of affairs and coolness is more important than darkness. If the temperature isn't low enough, the bulb will push up leaves before it has enough roots to support them; then as flowering time approaches, the whole plant collapses.

There are various ways of achieving this cool darkness. Some gardeners keep their bowls of bulbs in a dry trench dug in a cool, shady part of the garden, covering them with straw or loose peat. In my case, I have one corner of my basement which remains around 40 degrees all winter and my bulbs are stored here in complete darkness for 10 to 14 weeks.

When topgrowth is about three inches tall, the most forward bowl is brought into a cool room in subdued light for a couple of days until the blanched roots have turned a healthy green. Thereafter, they are grown in a sunny window of an unheated room, until the blooms are open, then are moved to where their decorative effect and fragrance will be most appreciated.

The Viewing World

Of John Crosby

Your Child Will Be Better

I watched the opening stanza of "National Velvet" with my 11-year-old daughter, which is the only way to watch it since it is she that it's aimed at. She thought it was absolutely wonderful so naturally I did, too. I also thought it rather wonderful that NBC is putting something on the air aimed at 11-year-old girls.

It's the aim of all 11-year-old girls to own a horse. That is the plot of the first episode. The girl dreams of getting a horse, and by George, she gets her horse and then rides him to victory (without a bride which is a bit thick) in the junior jump race.

It was all very throat-tightening and sentimental, but it was also extremely well-written and well-acted.

"National Velvet" came out of MGM, which is having trouble peddling its TV series although the ones I've seen have been very good. (Much better than the junk coming out of Revue, Four Star and Warner Brothers.) Heroine is Lori Martin, a 13-year-old girl who is following in the substantial footsteps of Elizabeth Taylor, who played that part in the 12th Century. She's a cool one, all right, a fine little actress and a great little lady.

She's surrounded by a very real family—and there's Mi Taylor, the unfrocked jockey who adds warmth and charm. But what I like about a show like this is that it propagates decency and decorum.

The aspirations of "Velvet" are decent, understandable and well-nigh universal among small girls. I think after your child has seen it she (or he) will go to bed a little better rather than a little worse. Is this too much to ask of a series aimed at children?

Earlier that evening Shirley Temple opened her new series with "The Land of Oz," laying herself out to some invidious comparisons to

"The Wizard of Oz." Well, shucks, fellows, it wasn't a $4,000,000 movie she came up with, but it was an hour of very pleasant nonsense. If your child did not enjoy it, then he's been ruined by neurotic Westerns and my only advice is: get rid of him and try again.

The cast was marvelous—Jonathan Winters as the evildest man in Oz, Agnes Moorehead as a monstrously highly styled witch, Ben Blue as the scarecrow, Sterling Holloway as Jack Pumpkinhead and Frances Bergen as a lovely good witch. It was directed by William Corrigan with the lightest of touches.

I must apologize for my enthusiasm for fairy tales and all but it's been so long since television provided a touch of enchantment. Television is devoted so tirelessly toward giving our children nightmares that a little wholesomeness seems doubly so.

Hollywood Today

By Sheilah Graham

Too Plump, Too Late

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Marilyn Monroe's well-wishers are hoping she will rush into a strict diet. It was her plumpness in "Let's Make Love," as much as her tardiness, that caused director-producer Billy Wilder to bypass Marilyn for "Irina La Douce" in favor of Elizabeth Taylor. Elizabeth usually puts on weight between pictures, but she always takes it off before reporting to the sound stage. And she is now dieting for "Cleopatra," the lady whom "age cannot wither, nor custom stale her infinite variety."

There's talk again that Hayley Mills, the Pollyanna girl, will sign for "Lolita," but I still believe Tuesday Weld will get the role. "But not for $25,000," Tuesday warned me on the set of a Zane Grey TV segment. Her price is $40,000 and going up. Actually, with James Mason playing Humbert Humbert, Lolita is quite safe, wouldn't you say?

Esther Williams knows how to please her current beau, Fernando Lamas. She brought him to the set of her Zane Grey segment, and afterward they watched the film that had been shot, with Esther asking Fernando for his advice. He believes in giving it to the woman of his choice. Esther would have married Jeff Chandler but for the delay in his divorce, and she will marry Fernando if his divorce doesn't take too long to get. Love hereabouts seems to cool when the waiting is long.

Art Linkletter's "Confessions of a Happy Man" will be released in November. Very good reading. Art's son, Jack Linkletter, has inherited Art's touch for making money. He has formed a real estate syndicate for the development of land in southern California where you can't go wrong with the enormous increasing population.

It was Frank Sinatra's pleading that brought Spencer Tracy back into "Devil at Four O'Clock." Spencer has been ill. This, more than his date for the next picture, was why he wanted out from the film. Sinatra admires Tracy more than any other actor in Hollywood. He's delighted they will be co-starring after all.

Jeff Donnell, on one of her infrequent visits to Hollywood, halted me at the Beverly Brown Derby and told me she was in town to do some television filming. And as I left, "Darn it, I should have worn my anniversary present from my husband—a big uncut emerald." Jeff is very happily married and lives in New York.

From Carolyn Jones—"We're (her agent) talking about 'By Love Possessed,' with Lana Turner and Efrem Zimbalist." At the moment Carolyn is filming a June Allyson show. She is just as willowy as ever. Can't gain weight, but wants to—this is a problem I would love to have.

Minks in Japan Money-Makers

TOKYO (Reuters) — Mink fisheries companies, trading firms and refrigerating mills. One is the Taiyo-Amerex Mink Company, recently established jointly by Taiyo Fisheries Co., a leading Japanese whaling company, and Amerex International Corp. of the U.S.

The Taiyo-Amerex company began operations in August, after establishing a capital of 800,000,000 yen (about $2,080,000) equally shared by the Japanese and U.S. firms. Japan's production totalled 24,000 minks in 1959.

The suitable climate and use of whale meat as food for minks has made the industry popular.

LARGE SCALE
Mink-breeding, started in Hokkaido in 1953. At first, farmers there bred only five to 10 mink a family. But latest breeding is on a large scale and there now are about 1,000 mink farms.

End School Tax 'Kidding' B.C. Municipalities Told

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Municipalities that think they have autonomy in operation of their schools are kidding themselves, Mayor William Moore of Courtenay said Friday.

He told the Union of B.C. Municipalities, municipal governments should get rid of the responsibility of collecting school taxes and let the provincial government raise its own school taxes.

NOT TO BLAME

He added municipal councils were being blamed for rising education costs yet have virtually no control over them.

Mayor Moore's remarks highlighted a new assault by the UBCM on provincial policy on education financing. The union contends education is a provincial and federal government service to people, not property, and should be financed entirely by B.C.

Delegates approved a resolution which asked Ottawa to return part of income tax revenue to help defray school municipal expenses as schools and hospitals.

A move to have the winter works program extended to a year-round activity to cope with unemployment was rejected.

Several delegates said this would destroy effectiveness of the winter plan.

Unanimous approval was given a Surrey resolution that employable persons without jobs be required to work for social allowance payments. Before this could be done, provision contends education is a provincial and federal governments would have to revise existing policy.

A Grand Forks resolution that the homeowner grant to residences on limited income be increased, was defeated.

Delegates urged a provincial

Judge Warns:

Death Penalty Back If Rape Increases

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — An assize court judge said Friday Canada might have to consider reimposing the death penalty in rape cases if they continue to increase in number.

Mr. Justice Harry Sullivan made the observation as he sentenced five youths to jail terms and whippings with the paddle for the rape more than a year ago of a 22-year-old woman crippled by polio.

He said the courts are imposing more severe sentences, but if that does not work "the people of Canada might have to reimpose the death penalty." Four of the five men—Prem Singh, 23, Robert Singh, 19, Harpudgy Singh, and Her-

Russia Out to Win, No Matter How, Club Told

Speaker was Sir Robert Henry Hadow, member of Britain's diplomatic service from 1919 until his retirement in 1958. His career included several years as adviser to the United Nations on Latin American affairs.

Using the topic "Africa and the Commonwealth," Sir

Robert outlined some of the methods whereby Russia was trying to gain an objective which, he said, was voiced precisely by Premier Nikita Khrushchev:

"I hope to see, with my own eyes and in my own day, the Red Flag flying over the whole planet."

The speaker told how Russia is taking advantage of every opportunity to gain new footholds—especially in Asia and Africa. People of those continents are being wooed by Moscow with trade treaties, not for economic reasons but for political gain.

"They (the Russians) are out to win, no matter how."

Some of their operations have been visible in the Congo, Sir Robert said, with infiltration of Russian advisers and technicians who are nothing but Red Army officers.

"There is only one thing to do: the Western nations must sit down quietly—not in public, as I speak today—and talk as with our own kith and kin. We must open our mutual doors to trade, creating more for all.

"This plan has worked in Western Europe, despite doubts. It can work for the Western world as well."

To Protect Spring, Coho Run

Sooke River Waters Closed

Federal fisheries officials yesterday announced imminent closure of tidal waters of the Sooke River to sports fishing in order to protect the run of spring and coho salmon.

At the same time the department announced that net fishing will be resumed in Juan de

Fuca Strait at 6 p.m. Sunday. Closure of sports fishing by angling or trolling in the tidal waters of the Sooke River will be effective from midnight Sunday until further notice.

where Demanel Creek joins the Sooke River.

Fisheries Inspector Harry Burrow said the action was being taken for the protection and conservation of spring and coho salmon using the Sooke River.

Resumption of all salmon net

fishing in the Strait—described on official charts as area 19 west of William Head and all of area 20—brings into effect a 72-hour weekly closed time, also until further notice.

The weekly closed time runs from 6 p.m. Thursday of each week until 6 p.m. on the Sunday following.

Problems of Marriage Topic of Banff Rally

Conservation Rally

Clean Water, Fresh Air Aim for City

More than any other place in North America, Victoria is a city in which individuals seek a fine quality of living.

This is the belief of the Conservation Council—and the reason the council is making a bid for support here in its efforts to ensure fresh air, green natural landscapes, clean unpolluted bodies of water, balanced community facilities.

SAME OBJECTIVES
Individuals and organizations seeking the same objectives are invited to the council's next meeting at 8 p.m. Thursday in city council chambers.

Brahm Wiesman will be principal speaker at the meeting, outlining the Capital Region Plan and answering questions about that plan.

Referring to residents of Greater Victoria interested in conservation, Kenneth McAllister, council president, says:

NEED COUNCIL
"These people need the Conservation Council and the council needs them. They may or may not work actively in it, but I believe that their commitment to its principles is most important.

"As problems arise, experts will be asked to consider all the implications and the council will usually act in accordance with their recommendations."

Sidney Roofing

Another Use Still Sought For Factory

A new use for the Sidney Roofing and Paper Company plant in Victoria is still being sought.

Operations of the plant in its present capacity are scheduled to come to an end Nov. 30, and then machinery used to manufacture paper will be dismantled and moved to the company's Burnaby plant. Parent company, Macmillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd., is studying the possibility of using the Victoria plant for some other purpose within its operation. But chairman J. V. Clyne told the Colonist yesterday from Vancouver that another use has yet to be found.

Firing Practice Slated Sunday

Big, Sell-Out Season Ahead for Symphony

"What, again?" asks Charles N. Brown, 824 Kings, as he surveys fence broken by car outside his home yesterday. Same fence was broken less than a year ago during a nother accident. — (Colonist photo.)

'Time for Crackdown'

Fence Felled Once Again

Twice within the past year, 80-year-old C. N. Brown, 824 Kings Road, has had his fence knocked down by cars involved in accidents in front of his home.

"What's the trouble around here? We got a 30-mile zone and they go 60, that's what," he said, after it was broken yesterday for the second time. "We need a cleanup here. It's time for a crackdown on speeders. It's got so bad that I quit driving seven or eight months ago before somebody killed me, and I drove for 40 years and have a clean slate," said Mr. Brown.

"If the police want to make a lot of money, they ought to be down here catching speeders instead of marking tires downtown. I've lived here more than 30 years and it's been bad ever since they paved the street."

In yesterday's accident at Kings and Blanshard, two drivers were injured and their cars heavily damaged.

Gerald R. Irvine, 1343 Esquimalt Road, was taken to HMCS Naden hospital for treatment of a head abrasion; and Kenneth F. Chalmers, 3411 St. Matthew's, to Royal Jubilee Hospital for treatment for a cut over the right eye and an injured left knee.

After the collision, the Irvine car smashed Mr. Brown's fence.

Ticket Prizes Offered

Victoria symphony orchestra appears headed for a highly successful season.

Symphony society president Jack Barraclough said yesterday he is confident all the Monday night concerts will be sold out for the coming season. The series consists of 10 pairs of concerts, with those on Sunday afternoons made informal to attract families.

200 TICKETS
Mr. Barraclough said with the concentrated drive for new members hardly under way, more than 200 season tickets have already been sold. Allowing for a drop in last year's more than 1,900 season ticket-holders, mainly through people moving away, this represents a net increase estimated at 50.

As part of its 20th anniversary celebrations, Victoria Symphony Society is offering prizes for the three best completions, in 20 words or less, of the sentence beginning: "I like the symphony because..."

SIMPLE RULES.

Rules are simple. Entrants must be 20 years old or less. Entries, with name, address, phone number and date of birth on the back, must reach the symphony box office at Eaton's department store by 5:30 p.m. Oct. 1.

First prize is four Sunday afternoon tickets for the entire concert series; second, a pair of tickets for the series; and, third, a pair of tickets for any concert of the winner's choice.

PART OF DRIVE
Mr. Barraclough said the contest was part of a campaign to promote more family participation in the Sunday afternoon concerts. A feature of the Sunday programs is the informality of the occasion.

"We're very happy about the way subscriptions are coming in with the campaign only just about a week or 10 days old," said Mr. Barraclough. He said more subscribers mean better programs for the future.

Shoplifting Charge

Arrest Follows Store Scuffle

A brisk scuffle in the office of a Douglas Street variety store yesterday afternoon resulted in the arrest of a man who today will face shoplifting charges in city court.

W. R. Gower, assistant manager of the F. W. Woolworth Ltd. store, Douglas and View, said he was called to the floor by one of the check-out girls who had noticed a man acting in a suspicious manner.

Mr. Gower kept the man under observation, followed him outside, and brought him back to the office for an interview with himself and E. A. Hobbs, store manager.

was not seen in the man's hand.

To Cadets

Invited to Government House for the occasion are 125 Rainbow corps cadets, 100 Navy League cadets of the Admiral Rayner corps, and 24 members of the Navy League Wrenette division.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I've been going with a man for almost two years. We plan to marry as soon as we settle a few family and financial problems.

When we first started to date we played a lot of golf together. My father was a pro and I used to shoot in the low 70's. Earl's game was pretty bad and I beat him consistently. He got so mean I finally gave up playing with him.

Last summer he taught me how to handle a tennis racket. By June of this year I was beating him two out of three. When he lost his temper and broke his racket I announced I was through playing with him.

Now we've started to bowl together. I've never bowled before but I seem to have a knack for it. I see trouble ahead. My girl friend says I should let him be better at this if it kills me. I don't agree. What do you say? — TOP BANANA.

Dear Top: No man likes to have his brains beaten in, especially by a female. It's less than smart for a woman to consistently parade her superiority whether it's intellectual or athletic. How important is it to win the game if you lose the guy?

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a widow in my early 50's and

Education Should Be Top Effort

"The biggest effort we should make is to attract to our country students from Africa and Asiatic countries to study engineering, agriculture and accounting, even at a great cost to ourselves," Sir Robert Hadow told members of the Women's Canadian Club at a meeting in the Empress Hotel yesterday.

Sir Robert, a retired British diplomat, was speaking on the Commonwealth and the Soviet bloc.

He said the Russians were spending millions on educating youth from Asia, Africa and Latin America as they are fully aware that education in the formative years decides the future.

Today the Russians operate a University of Friendship Peoples where 2,500 students from outside Russia are being trained as advisors and technicians.

Russia has benefited greatly by this method of infiltration into other countries and is continuing to do so, the speaker said.

Sir Robert pointed out that the 200 Chinese students taken to Moscow in 1932 are now running China.

"If we are going to save our civilization we must make a much greater effort, even at the cost of personal sacrifice, to help other peoples of the world," he stated.

"We want one world, a world not under Soviet domination. Russia has a right to share and to be our partner but a partner that seeks peace, not a nation under the tutelage of one man who is an atheist, a materialist and dictator," he concluded.

League Collected $35,000 During Year

Collection of $35,000 highlighted the year's activities of the Queen Alexander Solarium Junior League and another full program of fund-raising activities will commence shortly, according to reports read at the league's first meeting since the summer recess.

A cheque for $27,000 was recently presented to the Solarium's board of directors while an additional $8,000 was spent on the purchase of special equipment for the crippled children.

Amount collected averaged about $1,000 for each member of the Junior League.

First projects of the new year will be the Farmerette ball, to be held Nov. 5, and the selling of hot dogs, coffee and hot chocolate at Goldstream during the salmon run up the river. The league's mobile trailer, used last year for the first time, will be manned at Goldstream by league members every Sunday during November.

One of the most interesting reports was that given by Miss Pearl Ward on the minstrel show produced by the league last April.

Mrs. Juanita Garden has been elected president of the league for the coming year and Miss Margaret Munn is vice-president. Recording secretary is Mrs. Glenna Karst and correspondence secretary, Mrs. Jerry Pike. Miss Peggy Spears is treasurer.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy E. Thorp, 3730 Craigmillar, are celebrating their golden wedding anniversary today and will entertain for their friends this afternoon. They were married in London, England, and came to Canada in 1914. Victoria has been their home for the past 15 years. They have one son, Robert, and two grandchildren.

Male Interest Shown In Fashions at Lunch

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Seibner and Mr. and Mrs. Peter Forrest were together at the Crown House yesterday for luncheon.

There is a double attraction at this restaurant this month, the daily fashion shows at the lunch hour, 12.30 to 1.30 p.m., and again in the afternoon from 3 to 4 o'clock.

The other is the mural on the south wall done in the new medium, scraffito. A mixture of mortars, the mural weighs around 800 pounds and is creating a great deal of interest.

The artist, Herbert Seibner, no doubt was as interested in the reaction to his mural as in the fashions.

The shows which started this month on a trial basis are attracting the interest of men lunching at the Crown House. They can look if they want to as the models stroll by casually or if they are deep in conversation they can ignore the whole thing.

One lucky and probably very surprised woman was the wife whose husband was lunching there and bought an outfit for her on the spot.

TIPS FOR PARENTS

By HELEN R. HEWSON

In the old days anything that pleased the senses, especially the sense of taste, Grandma called sinful.

Grandma was a superb cook and when her visiting grandchildren smacked their lips over her fried chicken and strawberry shortcake, they were sternly rebuked.

Food was fuel for the body to sustain us through our hours of toil. Food was a necessity, not a source of pleasure and enjoyment.

As long as Grandma lived, her grandchildren continued to visit her, to enjoy her good food, her biting humor and her vain efforts to reduce eating at her table to the level of a routine function.

There are probably very few people today who would agree with this puritan grandmother. But there are many who seem to believe the opposite side of the coin, that it is good and virtuous to eat those things we do not like.

"Eat your vegetables, your cereal, your pudding, etc., etc., its good for you." Good, nourishing food is good for us — if we enjoy eating it. Enjoyment is compounded of many things, appearance, flavor, aroma, consistency.

Many children are slow to accept new foods as they are added to their diet. To become excited, worried or angry only increases their resistance. A few simple rules will help both mother and child enjoy the meal hour.

Food should be presented in a quiet, matter-of-fact manner — no fussing. Avoid tough, stringy, lumpy food, and too large pieces. Crisp, raw vegetables can be cut into easily handled pieces.

Puddings should be of medium consistency, neither watery nor stiff. Try no spices, moderate amount of sugar, salted with care.

Use a small amount of new or less liked food given with favorite food. Never two difficult foods at the same meal. Serve in quiet, attractive spot. Avoid confusion and distractions at meal time.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A surgeon says get rid of that bottle warmer, mother. It's dangerous and it's unnecessary.

The warning comes from Dr. Carl A. Moyer, head of the department of surgery at the Washington University School of Medicine in St. Louis.

"There's no extra value in warming up the milk," Moyer said. "It's no different from cold milk and merely deludes the infant into thinking it's mother's milk."

Moreover, the danger of spilling hot water from the warmer on children makes its use extremely dangerous, he told the first international congress on research on burns.

Nikita Khrushchev

Red Declaration of War On UN Unites West

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—Nikita S. Khrushchev precipitated the United Nations into a fight for its existence Friday and the United States and Britain united to save the world parliament from eventual destruction by communism.

The United States and Britain, in separate declarations, termed the Soviet premier's speech (see Page 11) a "declaration of war against the United Nations." The two allies, who have not always seen eye to eye in the U.N. were acting as one to head off this new threat.

U.S. Ambassador James J. Wadsworth, speaking in reply to Khrushchev, told the assembly it faced two crises.

The first, he said, was Khrushchev's threat to "turn the world's greatest body for peace into a propaganda forum to serve the interests of communist imperialism."

"But there is a second and more serious crisis," Wadsworth said, "which consists of an attempt to destroy the office and very structure of the secretary-general and the secretariat, and through it to destroy the United Nations."

Secretary of State Christian A. Herter used the "declaration of war" phrase at a lunch meeting of the foreign press association. British foreign office spokesman John Russell utilized the same words later in giving Britain's first official reaction to Khrushchev.

Russell's statement, as British foreign office spokesman here, was regarded as perhaps the most outspoken British denunciation of Russia's policy in the U.N. and of unequivocal British support for the world organization.

"Khrushchev's proposal for reorganizing the office of the secretary-general by weakening and diluting it," Russell said, "represents a confession that a strong and effective U.N. machine is incompatible with Soviet ambitions."

"In other words, the weaker the United States, the greater chance the Soviet Union has of achieving its professed ambition of world domination. This morning's performance struck us as being a Russian attack on mankind's hope for a united world."

Herter indicated to Hammarskjold that the United States wanted to submit an immediate motion of confidence in him as secretary-general.

Khrushchev's speech left in its wake a mounting confusion and disension that threatened to develop into the bitterest feelings the world organization has seen in its 15-year history.

Big Three Huddles To Back Dag, UN

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Foreign ministers of the West's Big Three huddled last night on plans to throw maximum support behind the United Nations and Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold. After State Secretary Christian Herter talked with the UN head, he joined Britain's Earl of Home and France's Maurice Couve de Murville.

DAG HAMMARSKJOLD

Nikita In a Nutshell

ON THE UN: Abolish the post of secretary-general and replace it by a Soviet-style presidium in which Russia presumably would have veto power.

ON COLONIALISM: Grant complete independence immediately to all colonies, UN trusteeship territories and non-self-governing territories.

ON CONGO: "The assembly should give a rebuff to the colonialists and their stooges and call Mr. Hammarskjold to order ... only the troops of the countries of Africa and Asia should be left ... only with the consent of the legally-elected Congolese government of Mr. Lumumba."

ON CUBA: "The United Nations must do all it can to remove from Cuba the overhanging threat of interference from outside."

ON THE U.S.: "... the question of aggressive actions of the United States must be dealt with by the United Nations at its plenary session."

ON DISARMAMENT: Basically a reshuffle of last year's proposal for total world disarmament in the next four years.

ON THE FAR EAST: Communist China must be admitted to the United Nations. The two Koreas should be allowed "peaceful reunification."

West Solidly Behind Dag

Nikita Seems Headed For Stunning Defeat

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev appeared headed for a stunning defeat in his proposal to abolish the post of United Nations Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold.

This was the consensus of UN diplomats Friday night as they weighed the words of the Soviet premier and the indignation his speech to the UN aroused from the United States, Britain and many other countries.

VOTE CONFIDENCE

The United States was ready to put a resolution before the 15th session of the General Assembly demanding a vote of confidence in Hammarskjold. Such a resolution was certain to win overwhelming approval.

Khrushchev evoked laughter in the assembly from both pro-Western and anti-Western delegates when he proposed also that the UN headquarters be moved out of New York.

U.S. delegate James Wadsworth, taking the floor at the afternoon session of the assembly, recalled that the Soviet Union had tried to crush Trygve Lie, who was Hammarskjold's predecessor because Lie "stood up against Communist aggression in Korea."

Soviet opposition to Lie was credited with his decision not to become a candidate for re-election in 1953.

Hammarskjold himself had no comment. His associates said he considers it was a matter for the assembly to handle. Western diplomats lined up solidly behind Hammarskjold.

In London, diplomatic observers said Khrushchev's speech held out poor prospects for a quick relaxation of world tension and a successful summit conference next year.

COOL REACTION

The address received a generally cool initial reaction in western Europe. Western observers in Moscow said his speech was Khrushchev's biggest bid to date to attract new supporters from the uncommitted countries of Africa and Asia. To these observers much of the speech contained familiar Soviet viewpoints on "colonialism" and "full, complete disarmament."

SEEMS TO DIVIDE

London commentators saw Khrushchev as trying to stir up the Afro-Asian nations against the West and seeking to divide the UN along East-West lines.

In Paris, Khrushchev's disarmament proposals were termed "utopian" and not meant to be taken as the basis for hard-headed negotiations. His proposal for dropping Hammarskjold's office was viewed as a propaganda move.

Deadly Bubonic Plague Breaks Out in Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE (UPI)—The world health organization today reported an outbreak of bubonic plague in the Congo but added there was no danger of an epidemic. Bubonic plague wiped out entire states in Europe in the middle ages.

City Seaman Drowns As Boat Capsizes

Norwegian-born Olav Watne, coxswain of the Victoria-based federal government hydrographic survey vessel William J. Stewart, drowned Thursday when a small boat capsized in severe weather off the southern tip of the Queen Charlotte Islands.

Four other unidentified crew members, who made their way to shore and spent the night on a small island after the boat capsized, were rescued yesterday by a lifeboat from the hydrographic ship.

Two of these men were injured and were treated by a doctor flown 100 miles from Sandspit on the central Queen Charlottes before being taken back to their ship.

Betrays Motto

SOUTHAMPTON, England (Reuters)—John Denzil Fox-Strangways, 52, heir to the earldom of Ilchester whose family motto is "deeds without word," was fined $5 ($14) in court here Friday for swearing in a railway car.

OTTAWA (UPI)—Prime Minister John Diefenbaker hopes to lift the unemployment issue out of the narrow realm of partisan politics and to secure a voluntary freeze on wages and profits, sources close to the government reported last night.

These aims are said to underlie the series of conferences with labor, industry, and agriculture which he has announced will be held during the autumn.

The purpose of Diefenbaker's new policy will be to muster a common Canadian front, devoid of political maneuvering on the unemployment problem, and to inaugurate a policy of lower productive costs in order to make Canadian products more competitive in both world and domestic markets.

The policy thus intimated is consistent with the recent emphasis which the prime minister and members of the cabinet have been placing upon rising Canadian costs in the failure of Canadian goods to compete in foreign markets and to resist the competition of foreign imports in the domestic market.

Diefenbaker's reported hope for a voluntary wages-profit freeze is tied in with the necessity for keeping the prices of Canadian commodities competitive and making them increasingly so as prices rise in other countries. In the opinion of both the prime minister and his cabinet colleagues, this course represents the sure road to ultimate full employment for Canadian workers.

Carpenters to Probe Welfare Policies

NANAIMO (CP)—Local 527 of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America (CLC) has formed a committee to investigate reports that the social welfare department is refusing unemployed workers benefits and suggesting that they mortgage their homes so they can clothe and feed their families.

Union members have also charged that the department is refusing to assist anyone who becomes involved in construction or speculative building on borrowed money, despite the fact that any money borrowed is earmarked for material purchases only.

Millions 'Addicted' to Laxatives

CHICAGO (AP)—A doctor said Friday at least 100,000,000 Americans are addicted to laxatives they don't need.

Dr. Charles Hook of Augusta, Ga., writing in the current issue of Today's Health Magazine, said superstition and advertising have brainwashed the public into believing regularity is necessary for good health.

"Your doctor knows nothing about it," Hook said. The idea of regularity is based, Hook reported, on old-fashioned habits, half-truths, incorrect beliefs and modern advertising.

Green Tags Speech 'Utterly Destructive'

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Canada's External Affairs Minister Howard Green said Friday night the Khrushchev speech was "utterly destructive, particularly unfortunate after the helpful speech made by Mr. Eisenhower yesterday."

Green, in an extremely busy day, came out of a meeting of the assembly's steering committee to meet reporters.

LUNCHEON DELAYED

A luncheon he gave for high diplomats was delayed until 3 p.m. by Khrushchev's speech. Among those attending were British Foreign Secretary Lord Home, Indian Defence Minister Krishna Menon, Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko of Russia and Russian Ambassador Valerian Zorin.

Asked whether they talked about the speech, Green grinned and said:

"All the time."

BURNS THERE

With Green in his meeting with Canadian correspondents was Lt.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns, head of the Canadian delegation to the 10-power disarmament negotiations which collapsed with a Communist walk-out in Geneva, in June.

LITTLE DIFFERENCE

Regarding inspection and control, the biggest stumbling blocks in East-West disarmament negotiations, Burns had found "no significant difference" between Friday's proposals and those made earlier.

Russia Out to Win, No Matter How, Club Told

Speaker was Sir Robert Henry Hadow, member of Britain's diplomatic service from 1919 until his retirement in 1958. His career included several years as adviser to the United Nations on Latin American affairs.

Using the topic "Africa and the Commonwealth," Sir

Robert outlined some of the methods whereby Russia was trying to gain an objective which, he said, was voiced precisely by Premier Nikita Khrushchev:

"I hope to see, with my own eyes and in my own day, the Red Flag flying over the whole planet."

"This," said Sir Robert, "is the peace Mr. K. is prepared to give the world—if we're fool enough to fall in with his plans."

The speaker told how Russia is taking advantage of every opportunity to gain new footholds—especially in Asia and Africa. People of those continents are being wooed by Moscow with trade treaties, not for economic reasons but for political gain.

"They (the Russians) are out to win, no matter how."

Some of their operations have been visible in the Congo, Sir Robert said, with infiltration of Russian advisers and technicians who are nothing but Red Army officers.

"There is only one thing to do: the Western nations must sit down quietly—not in public, as I speak today—and talk as with our own kith and kin. We must open our mutual doors to trade, creating more for all.

"This plan has worked in Western Europe, despite doubts. It can work for the Western world as well."

To Protect Spring, Coho Run

Sooke River Waters Closed

Federal fisheries officials yesterday announced imminent closure of tidal waters of the Sooke River to sports fishing in order to protect the run of spring and coho salmon.

At the same time the department announced that net fishing will be resumed in Juan de

Fuca Strait at 6 p.m. Sunday. Closure of sports fishing by angling or trolling in the tidal waters of the Sooke River will be effective from midnight Sunday until further notice.

The ban will be in effect from the mouth at Sooke Harbor to the point upstream where Demaniel Creek joins the Sooke River.

Fisheries inspector Harry Burrow said the action was being taken for the protection and conservation of spring and coho salmon using the Sooke River.

Resumption of all salmon net

fishing in the Strait—described on official charts as area 19 west of William Head and all of area 20—brings into effect a 72-hour weekly closed time, also until further notice.

The weekly closed time runs from 6 p.m. Thursday of each week until 6 p.m. on the Sunday following.

Conservation Rally

Clean Water, Fresh Air Aim for City

More than any other place in North America, Victoria is a city in which individuals seek a fine quality of living.

This is the belief of the Conservation Council—and the reason the council is making a bid for support here in its efforts to ensure fresh air, green natural landscapes, clean unpolluted bodies of water, balanced community facilities.

SAME OBJECTIVES

Individuals and organizations seeking the same objectives are invited to the council's next meeting at 8 p.m. Thursday in city council chambers.

Brahm Wiseman will be principal speaker at the meeting, outlining the Capital Region Plan and answering questions about that plan.

Referring to residents of Greater Victoria interested in conservation, Kenneth McAllister, council president, says:

NEED COUNCIL

"These people need the Conservation Council and the council needs them. They may or may not work actively in it, but I believe that their commitment to its principles is most important.

"As problems arise, experts will be asked to consider all the implications and the council will usually act in accordance with their recommendations."

NANAIMO — RCMP are searching for two men who have bilked central Vancouver Island merchants of more than $800. CAMPBELL RIVER—Raymond Roberts was found by searchers yesterday tired and hungry in the wilds of the Upper Quinsam Lake area, 25 miles from here.

DUNCAN — A resolution passed earlier this month for the restriction of milk from the mainland has been passed on to the provincial advisory board.

William Dunn, president of District "A" Farmers' Institutes, said yesterday the group is "pinning" it hopes on the fact that the agriculture minister will give in to the institutes and allow their advisory board to meet with the standing committee on agriculture.

Agriculture Minister Newton Steacy had abolished the two groups meeting in favor of him meeting them as minister. He was defeated at the polls on Sept. 12.

Mr. Dunn said the intention of stopping imports of milk to the Island, that has presently got a surplus, is a "tough" problem to solve.

Arrest Follows Store Scuffle

A brisk scuffle in the office of a Douglas Street variety store yesterday afternoon resulted in the arrest of a man who today will face shoplifting charges in city court.

W. R. Gower, assistant manager of the F. W. Woolworth Ltd. store, Douglas and View, said he was called to the floor by one of the check-out girls who had noticed a man acting in a suspicious manner.

Mr. Gower kept the man under observation, followed him outside, and brought him back to the office for an interview with himself and E. A. Hobbs, store manager.

The man, husky and about 40, was found to have two table lighters and a 12-inch bread knife on his person.

During an interval when Mr. Hobbs left the office, Mr. Gower said the suspect suddenly tried to make a break for freedom, striking the assistant manager, breaking a small office gate and knocking down two pictures which also broke.

During the scuffle the knife clattered across the floor, but

was not seen in the man's hand.

City police were called at once, and took a man, James Montgomery, into custody.

Nikita Khrushchev

WEST JOINS IN FIGHT AGAINST 'WAR ON UN'

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—Nikita S. Khrushchev precipitated the United Nations into a fight for its existence Friday and the United States and Britain united to save the world parliament from eventual destruction by communism.

"The United States and Britain, in separate declarations, termed the Soviet premier's speech (see Page 11) a "declaration of war against the United Nations." The two allies, who have not always seen eye to eye in the UN were acting as one to head off this new threat.

U.S. Ambassador James J. Wadsworth, speaking in reply to Khrushchev, told the assembly it faced two crises.

The first, he said, was Khrushchev's threat to "turn the world's greatest body for peace into a propaganda forum to serve the interests of communist imperialism."

"But there is a second and more serious crisis," Wadsworth said, "which consists of an attempt to destroy the office and very structure of the secretary-general and the secretariat, and through it to destroy the United Nations."

"The United Nations must face this crisis head on. If it does not, it will fail."

Secretary of State Christian A. Herter used the "declaration of war" phrase at a lunch meeting of the foreign press association. British foreign office spokesman John Russell utilized the same words later in giving Britain's first official reaction to Khrushchev.

Russell's statement, as British foreign office spokesman here, was regarded as perhaps the most outspoken British denunciation of Russia's policy in the UN and of unequivocal British support for the world organization.

"Khrushchev's proposal for reorganizing the office of the secretary-general by weakening and diluting it," Russell said, "represents a confession that a strong and effective UN machine is incompatible with Soviet ambitions."

"In other words, the weaker the United Nations, the greater chance the Soviet Union has of achieving its professed ambition of world domination. This morning's performance struck us as being a Russian attack on mankind's hope for a united world."

Herter indicated to Hammarskjold that the United States wanted to submit an immediate motion of confidence in him as secretary-general.

Khrushchev's speech left in its wake a mounting confusion and dissension that threatened to develop into the bitterest feelings the world organization has seen in its 15-year history.

Big Three Huddles To Back Dag, UN

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Foreign ministers of the West's Big Three huddled last night on plans to throw maximum support behind the United Nations and Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold. After State Secretary Christian Herter talked with the UN head, he joined Britain's Earl of Home and France's Maurice Couve de Murville.

DAG HAMMARSKJOLD ... no comment

Nikita In a Nutshell

ON THE UN:

Abolish the post of secretary-general and replace it by a Soviet-style presidium in which Russia presumably would have veto power.

ON COLONIALISM:

Grant complete independence immediately to all colonies, UN trusteeship territories and non-self-governing territories.

ON CONGO:

"The assembly should give a rebuff to the colonialists and their stooges and call Mr. Hammarskjold to order . . . only the troops of the countries of Africa and Asia should be left . . . only with the consent of the legally-elected Congolese government of Mr. Lumumba."

ON CUBA:

"The United Nations must do all it can to remove from Cuba the overhanging threat of interference from outside."

ON THE U.S.:

" . . . the question of aggressive actions of the United States must be dealt with by the United Nations at its plenary session."

ON DISARMAMENT:

"Basically a rehash of last year's proposal for total world disarmament in the next four years."

ON THE FAR EAST:

Nikita Seems Headed For Stunning Defeat

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev appeared headed for a stunning defeat in his proposal to abolish the post of United Nations Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold.

This was the consensus of UN delegates Friday night as they weighed the words of the Soviet premier and the indignation his speech to the UN aroused from the United States, Britain and many other countries.

VOTE CONFIDENCE

The United States was ready to put a resolution before the 15th session of the General Assembly demanding a vote of confidence in Hammarskjold. Such a resolution was certain to win overwhelming approval.

Khrushchev evoked laughter in the assembly from both pro-Western and anti-Western delegates when he proposed also that the UN headquarters be moved out of New York.

U.S. delegate James Wadsworth, taking the floor at the afternoon session of the assembly, recalled that the Soviet Union had tried to crush Trygve Lie, who was Hammarskjold's predecessor, because Lie "stood up against Communist aggression in Korea."

Soviet opposition to Lie was credited with his decision not

to become a candidate for reelection in 1953.

Hammarskjold himself had no comment. His associates said he considers it was a matter for the assembly to handle. Western diplomats lined up solidly behind Hammarskjold. In London, diplomatic observers said Khrushchev's speech held out poor prospects for a quick relaxation of world tension and a successful summit conference next year.

COOL REACTION

The address received a generally cool initial reaction in western Europe.

Western observers in Moscow said his speech was Khrushchev's biggest bid to date to attract new supporters from the uncommitted countries of Africa and Asia. To these observers much of the speech contained familiar Soviet viewpoints on "colonialism" and "full, complete disarmament."

SEEMS TO DIVIDE

London commentators saw Khrushchev as trying to stir up the Afro-Asian nations against the West and seeking to divide the UN along East-West lines.

In Paris, Khrushchev's disarmament proposals were termed "utopian" and not meant to be taken as the basis for hard-headed negotiations. His proposal for dropping Hammarskjold's office was viewed as a propaganda move.

Norwegian-born Olav Watne, coxswain of the Victoria-based federal government hydrographic survey vessel William J. Stewart, drowned Thursday when a small boat capsized in severe weather off the southern tip of the Queen Charlotte Islands.

Two of these men were injured and were treated by a doctor flown 100 miles from Sandspit on the central Queen Charlotte before being taken back to their ship, which now is returning to Victoria.

Weather and heavy seas prevented rescue attempts late Thursday, although emergency supplies were dropped by an RCAF plane that evening. The ship was Mr. Watne's only known address and his next-of-kin is in Norway.

Green Tags Speech 'Utterly Destructive'

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Canada's External Affairs Minister Howard Green said Friday night the Khrushchev speech was "utterly destructive, particularly unfortunate after the helpful speech made by Mr. Eisenhower yesterday."

Green, in an extremely busy day, came out of a meeting of the assembly's steering committee to meet reporters.

A luncheon he gave for high diplomats was delayed until 3 p.m. by Khrushchev's speech. Among those attending were British Foreign Secretary Lord Home, Indian Defence Minister Krishna Menon, Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko of Russia and Russian Ambassador Valerian Zorin.

Asked whether they talked about the speech, Green grinned and said:

"All the time."

With Green in his meeting with Canadian correspondents was Lt.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns, head of the Canadian delegation to the 10-power disarmament negotiations which collapsed with a Communist walk-out in Geneva in June.

Burns said he found only small changes—and not very helpful ones at that—in Khrushchev's outline of disarmament proposals.
